TALKING IT OVER — Students and other members of the local community get together at Skyline College to discuss alternatives to violence. The pilot program may be spread to other college campuses across the country.

Pushing Nonviolence

SAV Springs From Campus Disorders

By BOB PETERSON

The violence that begets violence also produces groups dedicated to quelling disorder.

One such group is Student Alternatives To Violence (SAV), whose headquarters are at 861 San Bruno Avenue West, San Bruno.

SAV (pronounced save) came to life last summer after the shooting tragedies on the Kent State (Ohio) and Jackson State (Mississippi) campuses. Four students were shot by national guardsmen at Kent State. Two students were killed by police at Jackson State.

San Brunan John Long, at that time a law student and president of the student division of the American Bar Association, became national director of the organization.

"At that time, it was obvious that channels of communication must be opened," said Long, explaining that he had decided to go to Washington, D.C., as the representative of the nation's law students to seek a solution to campus violence.

"As a student leader, I was confident I could get in to see the appropriate people. And I had the power of the American Bar Association behind me," Long said. "I went to beat the drums that the administration must open its doors constantly and repeatedly."

He said he managed to see most of the officials he sought.

Long also spent the summer visiting campuses and contacting other student groups that had hurriedly organized to combat violence. He began gathering information on other incidents, such as the bank burning at Isla Vista, near the U.C. Santa Barbara campus.

Instead of numerous disjointed organizations, SAV was to be the umbrella group. "Something was needed to draw the 'Keep it Cool' splinter groups together," Long said.

SAV obviously was not organized through the sole efforts of Long. Among others, much credit goes to professional football player Lance Rentzel.

Long said Rentzel, "for SAV's sake," has now stepped into the background. Rentzel, presently on the inactive list of the Dallas Cowboys, is awaiting disposition of morals charges.

In preliminary discussions between Long and Rentzel, several necessities became evident: the need for a group that would appeal to students; the need for backers who could generate publicity; and the need for education representation.

As a result, the initial brochure issued by the organization included the names of some very prominent and well known people, on both the steering committee and the advisory board. The latter, Long admits, do not really serve in an advisory capacity. They are, rather, a board of sponsors. These famous people agreed to lend their name to the cause of non-violence. Many went on television, and did much to initially promote the organization nationwide.

Included in this group are Glen Campbell, Joey Heatherton, Elliot Gould, Dustin Hoffman and Dionne Warwick. Also included are professional football players Craig Morton, Gale Sayers and O. J. Simpson, and astronauts James McDivitt and David Scott.

Getting people to lend their names to an organization is

El Camino's Band Wins Reno Event

El Camino High School of South San Francisco maintained its record of never having been defeated in the Reno Jazz Festival by tying for first in the 1971 competition just completed in Nevada.

The rugged three-day elimination competition involved 140 of the top high school bands throughout the six Western states. The Camino band finished in a tie with Pacific High School (San Leandro) after judges couldn't decide a definite winner after a night-time playoff.

The Camino band, 16 musicians and a female vocalist, earned three perfect "one" ratings (based on a scale of three) after the morning competition. After the playoff with Pacific High School the judges announced a tie between the two.

Since the band has entered the Reno festival it has finished first in 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1971. In 1970 Governor Ronald Reagan signed a special bill sending the Colt aggregation on a special goodwill tour of Europe so El Camino was unable to enter last year's competition.

Previous to 1967 the band, under the directorship of music instructor Ted Marr, had earned superior ratings in the Reno competition. Prior to 1967 no division winner was announced. The first year of the presently used ratings (1967) Camino won its division and was declared Grand Prize Winner.

SMJC Faculties Assured They Will Aid Planning

The faculties of the three colleges in the San Mateo Junior College District Wednesday got assurances from the district's administration that they would be included in any preliminary planning related to potential administrative cuts within the district.

The Board of Trustees and District Chancellor Clifford Erickson have stated on several occasions that they are pledged to at least a 15 per cent cut in administrative costs for the coming fiscal year. They are also pledged to moving the district's office from privately owned land to district-owned land.

Speaking at the regular meeting of the board, members of the faculties of the College of San Mateo, Skyline and Canada College all said they were concerned that their voices would not be heard in this matter.

"Our faculty has voted to be in on a piece of the action," the president of Skyline's Faculty Senate, Richard Rohrbacher, told the board members. "We just want some say in these cuts."

Pat Manning, a professor at Canada and a member of the American Federation of Teachers Union, said, "The only faculty involvement we've seen is that we get to hear the results (of the decisions)."

He warned the board that a continuance of this policy could lead to "demoralization and rebellion among the faculties."

District Chancellor Clifford Erickson said he and the administration were willing to meet with faculty representatives in order to help with the decision-making process on the cuts. "I welcome your suggestions," Erickson said.

Board President Robert Tarver was emphatic on one point: That the board is a decision-making body and that the teachers ought to be dealing with the administration and not the board.

Trustee Eleanore Nettle added that what the teachers seem to be asking for was participation in the development of these plans rather than the ability to make the actual decisions themselves. The teachers agreed.

Special Vote Turned Down

A special election in June on a proposed $40 million park and open space acquisition program has been ruled out by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Board members cited a number of reasons for the decision, among them an unwillingness to spend $70,000 on a special election and a feeling that the early date would not leave enough time to promote the program.

Supervisor Robert St. Clair suggested that both problems could be solved by consolidating the bond proposal with the primary election next June.

St. Clair asserted that the entire board is in accord with the "concept" of the proposal and commended the Regional Planning Committee, which consists of city and county officials, for the two years of work that went into the plan.

"But to me," he said, "they are just not far enough along to support a quick election."

The plan establishes a priority list of 16 park, beach or open space areas to be acquired in a first phase program extending through 1979. Sites, totaling 8,304 acres in all, include 315 acres atop San Bruno Mountain and several beaches.

In moving to deny the RPC request for a special election, St. Clair cited "uncertainties" about development plans on San Bruno Mountain and the inventory that is being made of private beaches that might be deemed already in public ownership because of long public use.

Supervisor Gerald F. Day said methods of financing, other than bonds, have not been discussed with the board. In opposing a special election, he noted that the county budget picture might jeopardize the chances of the bond issue passing.

"We will be having budget hearings at the same time," Day said, "and they are going to be rough this year."

The board asked for a public discussion of theproposal with RPC officials.

D.C. Holdup Suspect Is Arrested

Chicago police have arrested Harry Vaba, 38, suspect in the attempted holdup of the First National Bank of Daly City last February 8.

Vaba allegedly pulled up to the drive-in teller's window at the rear of the bank and deposited a package in the drawer.

He informed teller Terry Mitchell a specially built bomb was in the package—a bomb he could detonate electronically from inside his car, police said.

Mrs. Mitchell told the man she had to leave the window to get some money. She alerted bank officials and police were called.

The bomb was a fake.

San Leandro police also are anxious to talk to Vaba about a bomb holdup under similar circumstances at the First State Bank last January 18 which netted the robber some $1,800.

Both cases are in Federal Bureau of Investigation hands at this time, police Lt. Charles Terry, of the Daly City police department, explained.

Hearing on El Camino Hair Issue

The U.S. District Court in San Francisco will hear a South San Francisco student's challenge of the El Camino High School dress code today.

Federal Judge Lloyd Burke recently granted Daniel A. Davis, 16, of 17 Graystone Drive, a temporary restraining order in Davis' attempt to overthrow the school's ban of long male hair.

The principal of El Camino High, Robert Keropian, said that he did not consider the temporary injunction a victory for the youth.

"All the judge did was give both sides a week to prepare their cases," he explained, "There has been no decision."

Davis asserted that he recently had been told on a Friday not to return to school unless his shoulder-length hair was trimmed to the collar. Davis apparently did not get a haircut at that time, and on the following Monday was not allowed to attend classes, he said.

He seeks a permanent injunction preventing the school for suspending him for having long hair. He also asked $15,000 in damages for "emotional distress."

Keropian acknowledged that the youth's hair was "down to his shoulders three or four weeks ago," but, since then has trimmed his hair to the collar and is attending El Camino classes, Keropian added.

Keropian said the action is an attempt to test the constitutionality of the whole El Camino dress code.

Robbi Francesconi Is 'Miss Industrial City'

Sweeping two prizes right behind Robbi was Lizabeth Ghigliazza, 18-year-old beauty who won both the first runner-up position and the Miss Congeniality title. Third place went to Michele Kirchen, blonde, blue-eyed El Camino High senior, who danced with an umbrella and see-through raincoat.

Dolly Schumacher, who directed, pronounced the pageant by far the most successful to date, and noted the audience response.

This developed in a sing-along number called "Cohan Sings Again," which saw Gloria Chiapparelli take the show into the audience as the familiar George M. Cohan songs were played, involving all 600 in the act, as American Flags were passed out.

Dolly's three-year-old daughter, Wendy Ann, turned up, too, for a solo called "Meet Me in St. Louis."

The elaborate Gay Nineties' pageant, entitled Bustles and Beaus, was undoubtedly the biggest effort in South San Francisco, with complicated choreography that, according to Dolly, went off without a hitch, particularly a bathing suit scene complete to drowning and use of strobe light to simulate the "flickers."

The show opened with a "Memories" number offered by May Bell, who toured the vaudeville circuit in the great days of the medium. She wore her old costumes.

Retiring Queen Jodean Brochu joined Johnny Vaughn and the orchestra for the number "Ida" and Mrs. Chiapparelli sang "For It Was Mary," in another nostalgic number. With the director in mind, Vaughn finished this one up with "Hello Dolly." May Bell came back for an "After the Ball" number to conclude matters, and the awards followed.

Cleanup of San Pedro Creek Slated

Ecology Action of Pacifica will hold a clean-up program for San Pedro Creek April 17. The clean-up will start from the recycling bins at San Pedro Terrace Road and Highway 1, at 10 a.m.

There will be equipment available to help clean junk and litter from the creek. Volunteers are needed to help with this project.

In coordination with the same program, pamphlets are being distributed to over 4000 residents in the Linda Mar Valley.

JESD Study Slated

Trustee Tells Housing Plan

By WILL THOMAS

Trustee Dorothy Adams wants to put the Jefferson Elementary School District's third intermediate school "where the children are" in Daly City and Colma.

Mrs. Adams briefly outlined this week a proposal to use the JESD administrative building and site at 101 Lincoln to house seventh and eighth graders. She would shift administrative offices to available space at Fernando Rivera School, north of Alamany, in northern Westlake.

Administrators, it has been reported, are developing plans to convert Fernando into a "middle school" facility, housing sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

The district's aim is to reduce the student population at Ben Franklin, where the enrollment is above 1200.

Mrs. Adams said her proposal probably would put the enrollment at Franklin below 1000, with a Lincoln complex housing 700-plus students.

The district also has another intermediate facility in the Colma region east of Mission Street.

Mrs. Adams said her plan would eliminate the need to bus seventh and eighth grade pupils from southern Daly City to Franklin School in the Broadmoor area or to Fernando.

Only pupils who reside west of Skyline would be bused. She said she thought all the others would be within walking distance of their intermediate school.

Mrs. Adams pointed out that the heaviest student population is in the southern part of the city. They are bused to available classroom space to the north.

She said "pupils east of Skyline and South of Eastmoor could walk to the Lincoln site. Students west of Skyline would be bused to Ben Franklin and those north of Eastmoor would walk to Franklin School.

Mrs. Adams said she needed more information before she could proceed with a more detailed plan.

She said the district should avoid temporary housing programs. Parents ought to know where their children will be attending school for a period of six to seven years, she said.

The district already has a site ready for an intermediate school in the area of St. Francis Boulevard and Southgate, behind the St. Francis Shopping Center.

Trustees agreed to hold a rare study session to discuss the housing situation in the district. No date was set.

Protest Hearing on Plan to Widen 87th Street

A public protest hearing on the proposed Eighty-seventh Street improvement project has been scheduled by the County Board of Supervisors for 2 p.m. April 27.

The street, a major thoroughfare connecting the eastern part of Daly City with the Westlake district, is to be widened and improved between Sullivan Avenue and White Street. County Engineer S. H. Cantwell said curbs, gutters and sidewalks will be installed on the south side of the street, with credit being given to property owners who have had the work done in advance. Traffic signals are to be installed at Washington Street and Park Plaza Drive, Cantwell said.

The estimated cost is $187,600, according to the engineer, with the county to pay $157,300 and the remainder to be raised through assessments against the properties.

Anti-Violence Group Organized

one thing. Obtaining donations to sustain the organization comes a little harder.

"We're quite open about contributions," said Long. "We take them from any and every source."

There is a shift away from violent confrontation on campuses, and because of this SAV has been doing some regrouping.

Long said, "We are lying dormant for two reasons; we're still evaluating the best way to proceed nationwide, and we're waiting for our non-profit status from the Internal Revenue Service."

Long said opening the channels of communication was one of the fundamental reasons the group organized.

"We want SAV to be a long-term effort, however," said Long. "The basic premise is that it is not a student organization per se."

Last November SAV instituted a pilot project at San Bruno's Skyline College Campus. It was an open discussion between students and members of the community.

"We're also ready to go into the University of Texas, Southern Methodist University, the University of Chicago and Northwestern," said Long.

"In Washington, we're aiming for Georgetown and George Washington University. We also have people working on programs in New York, and have contacts in almost every state," said Long.

One project Long said the group would like to institute is a term paper proposal in which students would write their required term papers "by relating the classroom to the real world."

Long said an attempt is being made to set up such a proposal in California's college and university system. "If it doesn't succeed, we'll go on a school by school basis," said Long. "But it would be nice to have the endorsement of the State-wide System."

One finding at Skyline was agreement that the solution to campus tension is understanding the causes of disenchantment.

Correcting this disenchantment is one of the first basic needs identified by SAV founders. In a brochure issued shortly after SAV's organization, it was stated that "Student desire for a greater voice in the issues of campus governance, pollution, civil injustice, poverty, the quality of life, and, above all, the war — all are still with us (even after the shooting tragedies at Kent State and Jackson State."

The Skyline report indicated all college communities should provide a base from which the student can work toward a peaceful solution of all social problems.

SAV admits to having no complex or profound formula for solving the alienation of young people, and the corresponding growth of adult impatience with student demands. The Skyline project was hoped to be a move in the right direction.

San Bruno Police Chief Russell Cunningham said, "We didn't really accomplish too much at Skyline." He said he was disappointed in that not all who said they would be there showed up.

"I feel this is a good thing, if it could be built up," said the chief. "I wouldn't like to see it just dropped flat. It should be given a chance to grow."

Mrs. Sylvia Gregory, a San Bruno housewife, said, "It was a very interesting meeting." She said she found it fascinating because of a lot of personal feelings and attitudes were brought up and discussed.

"I don't know whether anything was changed," she said, "but we identified and understood each other. It is one of the better ways of getting people to discuss mutual problems, rather than throwing rocks," she said.

As a moderator of one of the two groups participating in the Skyline Project, South San Franciscan Terri Mirri said the SAV conference showed the need for mutual respect of another's ideas.

"We gave each other reasons why we think and feel the way we do," said Mirri. "And I was pleased to see a lot of people could sit down and talk to each other."

District P-TA Award Given Mrs. Powell

Mrs. Richard Powell, a Jefferson Union High School District trustee and the foster parent of nearly 50 children over the years, received the annual Honorary Service Award from the Seventeenth P-TA District last week at the Thunderbolt Hotel in Millbrae.

Mrs. Powell, who received the award from HSA chairman Mrs. Bert Nichols, is a member of the advisory Daly City Recreation Commission, Westmoor P-TA and is involved in numerous other activities.

The mother of six children, she recently was appointed to the Pacifica Youth Service Bureau, replacing the late James Cooper.

"Love Makes the World Wonderful" was the topic of a talk by Dr. Walter Symons, assistant superintendent of the Alum Rock Unified School District, San Jose.

Flights Too Low Over Nude Beach

Nude sunbathers at San Gregorio Beach are creating an unexpected hazard to low-flying aviators, the Federal Aviation Administration reports.

More than a dozen pilots have been cited for flying too low, after the nudists complained that planes were zooming down the narrow beach at altitudes as low as 30 feet.

Apparently, pilots have been assuming that the beach qualifies as an "unpopulated area" under Federal Aviation Regulations, which would permit low-level flying.

A different view is taken by the Federal Aviation Administration, as indicated by this quote from the April newsletter from the FAA's General Aviation District Office in San Jose:

"Here in this land of sunshine, we have many people who worship old sol in many different ways. One way is to meet Mother Nature as one did in the beginning, in the raw.

"There are a few beaches where people in the nude play in the sun and sand. This has created a hardship on a good number of pilots. Many pilots have gambled for a closer look, only to lose.

"Now, we could tell you not to fly over or near the nude beach located at —— ——, but we are afraid it would only add to our growing pile of paperwork.

"There are those who would classify these beaches as an attractive nuisance; however, if a pilot is flying at the proper altitude, the undraped attractions would not be 'scene.'

"Most of these beaches are rather crowded and would be considered an open area of assembled persons. This would require a pilot to fly at least 1,000 feet above the highest obstacle within a horizontal radius of 2,000 feet of the aircraft.

Hal W. Morrill, chief of the district office, said 15 pilots have been cited for flying too close to the people on the beach.

Carol Borelli and Marsha Summers announced the band as they played "Acid West," "Motivos" and "Walls of Jericho."

Soloists were Mark Benson, Russ Golub, Bill O'Shaughnessy and Gerodie Frazer.

After completion of their numbers the bands rating were announced. On a tough scale from one to three (one the best score possible) the band earned three two's, not quite as good as last year and not good enough to make the play-offs.

In order to win the Grand Trophy Corona had to compete against the finalists from all four classes, A through 4 A. The biggest class, 4 A includes schools with over 1850 students enrolled, the category in which Westmoor High School participated.

North County Deaths

Anthony Rossi, 54

Anthony L. (Tony) Rossi, an original petitioner in the Millbrae incorporation drive and later the mayor and city councilman, died Wednesday at Peninsula Hospital after a heart illness of over a year. He was 54.

Rossi was named mayor April 16, 1951 in the midst of a civic crisis, with two other councilmen facing a recall election. He had been appointed to the council the previous March 1 and was a compromise candidate for mayor between the two warring council factions of that time.

(Other Notices Page 27)

He served four years on the council.

Rossi was a native of Italy and a nephew of the late Angelo Rossi, former mayor of San Francisco. He came to California in 1930 and moved to San Mateo County 29 years ago, becoming a Millbrae real estate broker in 1944.

Rossi was a member of the Green Hills Country Club and Millbrae Optimists Club.

Survivors include his wife Beatrice of Millbrae; two sons, Ronald of Sunnyvale and Anthony of Millbrae; a daughter, Mrs. Gloria Backman of New York; two brothers, John of Moraga and Dino of San Pedro; two sisters, Mrs. Paula Porter of Corte Madera and Mrs. Louise Longo of San Francisco; and two grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 8:30 a.m. Monday from Chapel of the Highlands in Millbrae, with requiem mass at St. Dunstan's Catholic Church. Interment was at Holy Cross Cemetery in Colma.

Jail Escapee Recaptured

An escaped inmate of the Santa Clara County jail was recaptured in Daly City without a struggle.

George F. Riel, 29, was spotted by Officer John Morre sleeping in the back of a car reported stolen in San Francisco Monday.

Morre was on patrol in the vicinity of the Civic Center about 6 a.m. when he recognized the car as being reported stolen.

Examination revealed Riel asleep inside.

Riel was serving a term for auto theft in Santa Clara at the time of his escape on March 19.

Awards Set for Students in Daly City

Outstanding Student Awards will be presented for the thirteenth year by the Daly City-Colma Chamber of Commerce, Chairman Elio A. Fontana announced today.

The presentations dinner will be held May 20 at the Meat Block restaurant at Skyline Plaza, and will feature awards to four outstanding students from each of Daly City's high schools — Jefferson, Westmoor and Serramonte.

"The chamber of commerce is paying tribute and honor to the hard-working youths who have achieved high academic standards," Fontana pointed out.

Explaining that the Student Awards program has been a priority budget item with the chamber, Fontana noted that the award "achieves greater significance during these years of great social change."

He said the students, their parents and the school principals will be chamber guests.

Fontana launched the program in 1959.

N. County Parish Cook Assaulted

A cook at a North County Catholic church was assaulted and robbed by a young burglar in the church rectory.

The victim told police she had dozed off while reading in her bedroom.

When she awoke a man in his mid-20's wearing dark clothing and a scarf over the lower part of his face, grabbed her and tied her to the bed. A pillowcase was pulled over the victim's face to muffle her screams, police said.

It was not known whether the burglar-rapist took any church property. An inventory is underway today, police said.

The suspect fled the church building through a kitchen window into a rear parking lot.

She was taken to Mary's Help Hospital for treatment and released.

Entry to the building was made through a louvered window, police said.

D.C. Assault Investigated

Daly City police were today investigating the kidnap-rape of a 20 year old woman at a Geneva Avenue motel by two men Monday morning.

The victim said she was kidnapped at knifepoint from a downtown San Francisco street about 2 a.m. and taken to the motel where she was repeatedly raped. Both men left the motel shortly after 5:30 a.m. and the woman called police.

2 Charged in Assault

The authorities said they booked Daniel Hernandez, 19, of 688 Claridge Drive, and Steve Pointer, 18, of 543 Heathcliff Drive for allegedly assaulting Pacifica Sgt. Paul Averiett at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Police said Averiett was driving his personal car on Paloma, near Palmetto, when he saw the suspects talking with friends in a car. Averiett, unable to proceed, waited what the authorities said was a "reasonable time" before instructing the suspects to move.

Verbal abuse allegedly followed, so Averiett got out of his car. Averiett, the police charged, then was hit several times with a four-foot section of conduit and knocked to the ground, suffering head, shoulder and chest injuries.

D.C. Stores Are Flooded

Daly City firemen used vacuums for over two hours Thursday to get water off the floors of four stores flooded as a fire sprinkler system extinguished an upstairs blaze.

The firemen said considerable water damage was caused to the American Savings Bank, Federated Credit Corporation, Household Finance and Behrend's Jewelry on Southgate Avenue.

The fire had started in room 226, upstairs, at 15 Southgate in a rack of coats. A cigarette, or ashes apparently fell into a coat, firemen said.

The sprinkler system was activated; and it worked. The blaze was doused. However, the water went down to the first-floor offices.

San Brunan Injured in Skyline Crash

A San Bruno man was injured Monday when his car veered out of control and smashed into a streetlight pole while trying to avoid hitting another car on Skyline Boulevard in Millbrae.

Richard W. Thomas, 23, 570 Kains Avenue, San Bruno, was taken to Kaiser Foundation Hospital in South San Francisco by ambulance, after the 3 p.m. crash.

Millbrae police said Thomas was northbound on Skyline (the frontage road), nearing the Larkspur intersection.

Two cars pulled up to the stop sign on Larkspur, police were told, one pulled across, then the other drove in front of Thomas' car.

Police say Thomas drove to the left, to avoid hitting the car, lost control of his own vehicle, and slid into the light pole. The other auto was not involved in the collision.

Officers said they may seek a citation against the other driver, charging violation of right of way.

Doomed House Burns Down

San Bruno firemen got an unexpected training mission last week when fire started in an abandoned house on Seventh Avenue. The house was destroyed.

The structure is in the path of a freeway and was one of several to be torn down. It was isolated, a fire department spokes- was endangered.

Illegal Meeting?

Coast Session on Slide Bypass Road Productive

Opinion isn't unanimous about whether or not the Half Moon Bay City Council's unofficial meeting Sunday afternoon was illegal, but it was a productive session.

It was a study meeting with State Senator Arlen F. Gregorio about proposed amendments to his Senate Bill 358, which among other things now would reroute the new Devil's Slide bypass.

"There was no action taken. It was just a briefing and the senator has indicated he sees no difficulty with the way the meeting was called," according to John Gilroy, a Gregorio assistant in San Mateo.

The state Brown Act provides public notice and open meeting for local public agencies. Gregorio is a former assistant city attorney in San Bruno.

Half Moon Bay City Attorney Stanley Norton is away this week and couldn't be reached for comment.

Gregorio must have his bill, with amendments, ready for presentation to the Senate by early next week and agreed to a meeting with the council in Half Moon Bay, Gilroy said. The council last week had heard from Division of Highways engineer Clifford reen that Gregorio's bill would delay the Devil's Slide bypass by perhaps two fiscal years.

Instead of being funded perhaps in the 1971-72 fiscal budget it might have to wait until 1973-74, Green warned.

Councilman Gerald D. Pera, who arranged the session, said he thought it was best "that we should meet as quickly as possible" and suggested this last Sunday.

Pera and three other councilmen attended, including Mayor Albert J. Adreveno, Councilwoman Dolores Pompati and Councilman Cecil J. Marmont. Councilman Elbert R. Fernandez was away and the staff, including City Administrator Fred L. Paxton, wasn't advised of the meeting.

"But if it were irresponsible I suppose most of the fault would be mine," Pera said yesterday upon learning of the possible Brown Act violation.

The Brown Act requires that for special meetings such as this one, written notice must be given all councilmen and local news media at least 24 hours beforehand, unless specifically waived. No notice was sent out.

The Gregorio bill would have shortened by two miles and realigned the Devil's Slide bypass around the east side of Pedro Mountain. Amended, it would leave the present alignment to eliminate delays for re-engineering and new legal proceedings, Gilroy explained.

"We feel we don't need a coastal freeway yet," Gilroy said. "But if the people want to put it back into the system in future years it's a simple matter of passing new legislation."

"We're after a limited access facility," Gilroy went on, "with cuts no wider than four lanes behind Pedro Mountain."

This, it is felt, would satisfy conservationists and still move the traffic, Gilroy said.

The Gregorio bill would take the entire Cabrillo Highway out of the state freeway system, from Pacifica to the Santa Cruz County line. It would order that there be access control south as far as Tunitas Creek, a few miles south of Half Moon Bay and that there be no grade separations.

A pair of other amendments were discussed Sunday. One would move the northern Devil's Slide bypass terminus to just south of Linda Mar in Pacifica, from its present freeway plan terminus at Reina del Mar Avenue in Rockaway Beach.

The other would provide for one grade separation in Half Moon Bay, at the junction of Cabrillo Highway and the proposed cross-Peninsula freeway to Junipero Serra Freeway near Belmont and San Mateo.

The object of this bill is to help provide needed improvements at reasonable cost, Gilroy said, and taking the Coastside Highway out of the freeway system isn't a step backward.

"The Division of Highways has only legal language, but no plans in the foreseeable future for anything south of Tunitas Creek," Gilroy noted.

There are also plans for target dates by Division of Highways for expansion of the highway from Half Moon Bay Airport to Tunitas Creek, Gilroy said.

That link would have run from an interchange at Half Moon Bay Airport, near or through El Granada School and along the east foothills around Half Moon Bay, taking out Adreveno's entire flower growing plant for its intersection with the San Mateo freeway.

The Half Moon Bay Chamber of Commerce also has taken exception to Gregorio's original bill, sending a letter dated Sunday opposing the realignment at Devil's Slide because it would cause building delays.

The chamber also criticized removal from the freeway system because, it said, anything less "would worsen what is already an impractical bottleneck of traffic from Pacifica to the Santa Cruz County line."

Yellow Cab Raise OK'd

Peninsula Yellow Cab Company has been granted a ten-cent rate increase, from 60 to 70 cents per mile, by the City of San Bruno.

President Joseph Gilio told the council members his firm lost $8,965 last year. He said the only reason he "survived" is because he has an outside income of $10,000.

Gilio, at the request of the council, signed a copy of an income tax return he said was identical to the one he sent to the federal government.

Colma Dress Code Proposal Tabled

By WILL THOMAS

An attempt by Colma Intermediate School students to change their dress code to "everyone should wear clean, neat clothes" was tabled by Jefferson Elementary School District trustees March 22.

Board Chairman Edward Tomasello explained that he wanted more time to study the proposal.

Supt. Frank Greenwood supported the request from the Colma student senate because, he said, any code would appear unenforceable. He said that the district attorney's office has informed him that to go to court would only be an academic exercise.

Greenwood said that if students are sent home for violation of the dress code they are "caught in a mesh between ourselves and parents, if the parents want to test it."

He said there are several instances where parents do not concur with the code.

"We're in a box," he added.

He explained that the student senate voted 16-0 and the entire student body 600-75 in favor of the proposed code.

Two students personally urged the board to act immediately.

One said she could not understand a need for restrictions "as long as we're clean."

She rapped the fact that the present code outlaws blue jeans, although it allows a variety of other colors in the same fabric.

"We find ourselves caught in the generation gap," Tomasello said. "Parents want one thing; students want another."

The student asked, "Are the parents going to school?"

The second pupil said he believed that the "neat and clean" restrictions would eliminate most objections.

His central theme of dissent: "If parents don't care, why should we be concerned?"

P-TA President Arlene Pleich said the parents on her executive board were against the dress code proposal, but that its members were not going to fight if the pupils and the administration favored it.

But, she emphasized, all are upset.

'Spur' Title Authority Is Sought

Legislation to clear title to another portion of the "Millbrae Spur" has been authorized by the County Board of Supervisors.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes told the board that arrangements have been worked out with the city of San Bruno and the State Division of Highways to turn ownership of the right-of-way strip cutting between the city park and the county-owned Junipero Serra Park over to the city and the county. The property, Tarshes said, will be made a part of the two parks.

The right-of-way was acquired years ago by the now defunct Highway District 10 with the intention of routing the old Junipero Serra Highway to El Camino Real. The project, fought for years by residents and officials of the area, was abandoned when the Junipero Serra Freeway went in.

D.C. to Act Relocate Residents

Daly City will be ready within two weeks to relocate residents affected by the road-widening project along Knowles Avenue.

City Attorney Albert Polonsky said the target date for demolishing some 55 structures in the so-called Knowles Corridor is January 1972.

Before that date, residents of the area — owners and tenants — should have found siitable housing outside the project area, he said.

A list of housing is now being drafted by real estate men and will be available "in the next few weeks," Polonsky said.

Less than one-third of the people affected by the project attended Tuesday night's meeting at the former City Hall at 75 Wellington Avenue.

Those that did bombarded the five-member Relocation Advisory Committee with questions. The subjects ranged from moving costs to buying back a home once the city purchases it.

Answers to the most-frequently asked questions are contained in a booklet drawn up by the committee and available for citizens at the City Hall, 90th and Sullivan Avenues.

Members of the committee include Fred Bargioni, Henry Cosmos, Albert Jenkins (chairman), Charles Vincent and William Glenn Weman.

It is the duty of this committee to assist persons to be relocated with factual information and to act as liaison with the city, Polonsky explained.

Worker Hurt on Bayshore

A highway maintenance worker suffered a fractured pelvis at 1:50 p.m. Wednesday in South San Francisco when he was struck by a car which jumped a curb on the southbound off-ramp from Bayshore Freeway, the highway patrol reports.

Patrolman James Baker said a car driven by William A. Fleckenstein, 53, of 244 Aspen Avenue, South San Francisco, jumped the curbing soon after entering the off-ramp and struck Emil George Strehlow, 57, of 531 Beresford Avenue, Redwood City, who was standing on a gore point. Strehlow was taken to Peninsula Hospital.

Fleckenstein told Baker that he started to cough as he entered the off-ramp and then felt a bump as the car hit Strehlow.

Jail for a Neighbor? Views Differ

By BOB PETERSON

FEW PEOPLE WANT a jail in their back yard.

At least one person, Larry George, of 245 Merced Drive, San Bruno, said he would rather have the view of a jail than be looking at a housing project.

George lives near the controversial San Francisco Jail, situated between San Bruno and Pacifica.

His position undoubtedly is not popular to many residents living in the shadow of the jail. Most seem somewhat relieved to hear the County Board of Supervisors voted Tuesday to proceed with abatement of the jail. Many would like to see it torn down completely.

George, of course, is not against tighter security. But as to the jail, he said, "I'm not the least bit worried about it."

He said he bought his house in that area because he was impressed with the serenity. "It's peaceful and quiet. It (the jail) looks like an agricultural college.

"The supervisors certainly are not talking about me. I'd like to have the supervisors come and see this beautiful environment.

"What sticks in my craw is that some group apparently is trying to turn this area into a housing project," said George.

His position is that Sheriff Mathew Carberry is attempting to do the job he can on a limited budget. "If you tear this jail down, you'll end up tearing all jails down," said George.

George said the 1969 murder of a retired Pacifica sea captain was unfortunate. "But there is always going to be an escape. Prisoners escaped in Redwood City," said George.

"I don't condone escapes," he said. "But I don't believe this jail contains a highly criminal element."

A lady who preferred not to be identified, said she's lived in the area for years. For her, the escapes, and stories (true or otherwise) of manhunts in the wooded areas with guns and dogs, frighten her.

"Just from looking, the jail appears safe," she said. "But I believe that San Francisco should be more responsible. They have a duty to us."

She said she won't feel safe until something has been done. "We (in the neighborhoods) talk about it. It's in the back of our minds. We know jails are necessary. I would like to see it somewhere else. If we must have it here, let's have it under better conditions."

San Bruno resident Ron Stegman of 370 Allen Drive said, "It would be great to get it away from here. Every report issued gives it a bad rating."

While George spoke of invading housing developments, Stegman said he has heard talk of plans for a park in the area.

He said, if there is to be a park, it would be a nicer park if the jail were not there. "I don't care how much security you have, people wouldn't want to get too close to it," he said.

Stegman pointed out that the side of the jail where he lives is not as apt to be an escape route. "They generally go toward Pacifica because of the terrain; the hillside and trees," said Stegman.

It was in the Vallmar section of Pacifica that Christain Pederson was murdered by two escapees in 1969. They broke into the Pederson's cottage and beat both Pederson, who later died, and his wife.

Sentiment against the jail understandably is stronger in this area than in San Bruno.

One of the women instrumental in getting the initial investigation of the jail started was Mrs. Carolyn Livengood of 140 Sheryl Drive, San Bruno. She said about the abatement proceeding, "I'll believe it when I see it."

Speed Chase Nabs Drivers

Two drivers in their 50's were arrested on reckless driving charges by Brisbane police Wednesday after a high-speed chase into South San Francisco.

Booked were Carl L. DaLessio, 50, an electrician, of 324 King Drive, South San Francisco, who also was charged with possession of a concealed weapon; and Allan G. Owen, 50, a mechanic, of 520 Santa Teresa, Millbrae.

Brisbane Officer John Santero told the story:

Patrolman Bob Davis was on patrol on Bayshore Boulevard, near the Vanwater and Rogers plant, at 11:10 p.m., when he saw two cars southbound at an estimated 75 miles an hour in a 45-mile zone.

Davis gave chase as speeds reached 80 miles an hour at the Sierra Point Curve and about 90 miles an hour as they reached South San Francisco and Airport Boulevard in a 35-mile-an-hour zone.

The speeding cars suddenly stopped on Airport Boulevard.

Davis took the suspects to police headquarters. Officer Tom Buckley, said he found a loaded .22-caliber revolver beneath the seat of the DaLessio car.

Bruno Cable Television Set at $4.75 Per Month

Final rates have been established, and promotional activities outlined, for San Bruno's municipally owned Cable Television system.

Work is now progressing on cable installation in the first of a three-phase project. The first section — Monte Verde, Rollingwood and Crestmoor areas two and seven — should be ready by mid-May. The entire system is planned to be operational by June.

Council members Wednesday approved a base monthly charge of $4.75 for all subscribers, whether residential, business or apartment complexes. Municipal and educational facilities will have no charge.

Standard installation cost is $15 for a normal 150-foot aerial. The council members agreed to a promotional inducement to have residents subscribe early by giving an option of a $7.50 installation charge if the subscriber guarantees to stay hooked-up for two months. Another inducement that will be offered is a no-charge installation if the subscriber agrees to stay on for three months.

Installation of additional outlets — TV, FM, or TV-FM combination — cost nothing to the man in the house if done at the initial service connection. It will cost $5 after that time. This is the same for businesses.

The city will not place additional outlets in schools and apartments, motels and hotels will pay for extra installations according to the time and materials necessary to do the job, or by contract.

Monthly service charge for additional outlets will be $1, with no charge for schools. There also is a standard $5 reconnection fee.

As an example, a residential home will pay $4.75 for one hookup. If he desires to hookup another television set, or have an FM outlet, he pays an additional $1.

The apartment owner also pays the $4.75 for the one drop. However, each tap (specific hookup per apartment) will cost an additional $1.

Therefore a 200-unit apartment will pay $4.75 a month for the first apartment unit, plus $199 a month for the other 199 apartment units.

This charge, incidentally, is a minimum (flat fee) charge. It is paid regardless of whether the units are occupied.

THE Listening POST by Lyle Arnold & Alex Florea

A reader has suggested that a brief description of the five basic types of hearing aids and their application would be helpful. Let's discuss them in their order of development since 1902:

The first was the "body type," so named because its then-bulky microphone, amplifier and batteries were housed in a box on the front of the body, with a wire leading to the big speaker outside the ear.

20 years ago, 80% of all aids were still this body type. Since then, the perfection of tiny solid-state circuits has made smaller aids so efficient that the body type is used in only a very few cases, where severe hearing loss requires maximum amplification. The box, now only 1x3 inches, 2½ oz., is easily hidden in the clothing.

'Political' Use of Bruno Library Subject of Debate

An effort to prevent former San Bruno Councilman Dick Griffith from meeting with foreign born and senior citizens in the city's library failed on a 4-1 vote.

Griffith, while still a councilman, had set up meetings to assist senior citizens and the foreign born in approaching their msnicipal government.

His scheduled meetings in the basement of the library this Friday and Saturday were challenged as being political.

Griffith received a letter from City Librarian Thelma Passo saying she was cancelling the meetings because a "directive from the city manager's office informs me that these meetings are political in nature."

Councilman Neil Christal brought the subject to a head by asking how meeting with the foreign born, "who can't even vote," can be political.

Christal was supported by Councilman Tony Governale, who said he didn't want anyone making an arbitrary decision as to what is and what isn't political.

Councilman George Corey went along because he was informed political groups had used the facility in the past, therefore setting a precedent.

Mayor Maurice Hamilton was strongly opposed to it. He said Griffith is doing it for his own self aggrandizement. "Dick Griffith is back campaigning again," said Hamilton. "He started it with the old hassle of secret meetings. He'll be using these people to run his next campaign."

Because of the situation, councilmen agreed to review the city's position on the use of city buildings which supposedly includes community groups or organizations that are non-profit, non-partisan and non-denominational.

San Bruno Apartment Zone Voted

San Bruno council members have split their vote on approval of a rezoning from commercial to residential for an apartment complex on old San Bruno Lumber Yard property.

The council members also required the developer to subdivide the area into one unit to prevent piecemeal sale later.

Those objecting to the zoning change Monday, March 22 were Councilwoman Margaret Kozkowski and Councilman Neil Christal.

Mrs. Kozkowski said simply, "I don't like all those kids (the apartments apparently will generate)." Christal said he objected because he thought the commercial zoning should be promoted for commercial use.

Councilman George Corey said, "Anytime apartments go in, they are beneficial if they are a cohesive unit. This complex has a pool and landscaping."

Corey said that if the rezoning were not allowed, there would be several commercially zoned lots scattered in the area, where smaller (non-cohesive) apartments could be built.

Bookmaking Is Charged

The arrest of Forest D. Case at his home at 233 Alta Loma Avenue culminated some six months of police investigation into his actvities.

Detective Lt. Charles Terry said the elderly suspect was operating his "business" alone. He called the operation "slow."

The last such arrest was in October 1969.

Tax Relief Plea Heard

An impassioned plea by San Bruno senior citizens moved the council members last week to urge adoption of any general tax relief programs that may be beneficial to those past 65.

Walter Ross said the senior citizens were asking the council to support legislation presently in Sacramento, "so we can live a little better, instead of staying in a little joint to die," said Ross.

S.S.F. Works to Improve Oyster Point Dump Site

South San Francisco continues to try to please the Water Quality Control Board (WQCB) concerning the Oyster Point dump site, not knowing whether that board will file suit.

City Attorney John Noonan commented, "I don't know what is going to happen. If they (WQCB) do file, I believe we have a defensible position."

Any suit, according to Noonan, would have to be to enforce an order against polluting the bay previously issued by the WQCB.

Noonan said the city's defense would be that the city is not polluting. He said tests taken by the city confirmthis.

Meanwhile the South San Francisco Scavenger Company completed the placement of concrete along the dump's north slope.

Noonan said the WQCB is not pleased with the job. The city attorney said Lou Goss, director of public works indicated it was a good job, and that the city's consultant soils engineer said he approved of the project.

"I think we've done a good job on the north slope," said Noonan. "They're (WQCB) putting forward the position they want an excellent job on the south slope (when they say they're not satisfied with the north slope job)."

"The city will insist the scavengers fund the project," said Noonan. He estimated the cost at approximately $60,000.

JUNIOR PROM

An evening filled with color, music and dance will take place April 30 as the junior class of Westmoor High holds its annual Prom.

WHAT'S BEHIND the curtain? Those adults who attend the Ecology Faire at Serramonte Shopping Center April 3 will find out. The American Association of University Women will sponsor the booth from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. It will attempt to show how each household can become involved in ecology. Jon Starkweather, above left, is one of those persons who can't see behind the curtain, being held tight by Judie Leimer.

DC Egg Hunts

The Daly City Recreation Division's annual Easter egg hunts April 10 at 11 a.m.

Hunts will be designed for boys and girls, toddlers through the fourth grade.

The hunts will be held at Midway School, Skyline School, George Washington School, F.D. Roosevelt School, Marchbanks Park, Westlake Park, Westmoor High School and Colma School.

Each participant should take a basket or sack for collecting eggs. Children finding special eggs will receive prize baskets.

If the hunts are cancelled because of rain, eggs will be distributed on all local playgrounds April 12.

Additional adult supervision is needed for each hunt, and interested adults should call the Recreation Division prior to April 5.

All playgrounds will close at 3:30 p.m. April 10, instead of 4 p.m.

Audubon Society Slates Program

The "Natural History of the Sea Otter" will be featured at the public meeting of the Sequoia Audubon Society at 8 p.m., April 8 at Roosevelt School, Broadway and Vancouver Avenue, Burlingame.

He is currently making a film for the Audubon Lecture Series covering marine mammals and birds, including man's effect on the oceans.

'They Shoot Horses' at SC Theatre

"They Shoot Horses, "Don't They?", winner of several Academy Awards for 1969, will be screened at the Skyline College Main Theater Friday at 7:30 p.m. concluding the film series being sponsored by the S.C. Student Council. General Admission is $2, and $1 for ASB card holders.

In addition to "Shoot Horses," another recent box-office hit will be shown as a double feature. Because of publicity limitations on this second film, its title cannot be put on print. However, information can be obtained by cailing the college.

"Shoot Horses," rated as one of the top quality films released in 1969 stars Jane Fonda, Gig Young, and Susannah York. It was in this picture that Miss Fonda received the New York Film Critics Award for a very artistic performance.

This three-part film series is only one of the activities the Skyline Student Council has been launching to benefit not only students of the college, but the community as well.

'When the Earth Quakes' is Topic

Neil E. Fahy, noted geologist and member of the teaching staff of Westmoor High School Adult Education Program, will talk on "When the Earth Quakes" at the social meeting of Daly City Rockhounds at 8 p.m., April 5 at the War Memorial Community Center, Daly City.

A 'Better Place to Live' Theme

"A Better Place to Live" will be the theme presented by the Leaue of Women Voters of North San Mateo County in their booth at the Ecology Faire on April 3 at the Serramonte Shopping Center, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The booth will feature exhibits and information on three studies conducted in recent months by League members on the California Water Plan, air pollution and solid waste disposal.

Sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department, this group of gem and mineral hobbyists pursues knowledge of the earth sciences and related arts through film programs and presentations by speakers well known in their particular fields.

Fahy has conducted several series of courses in geology, particularly concerned with the physical properties and formation of the Bay Area coastal topography and its relationship with the many earth faults that criss-cross California. The San Andreas and Hayward faults in particular have been a source of interest to him, and will be outlined in his timely program.

Daly City Rockhounds is a member of the California Federation of Mineralogical Societies and while it is essentially a hobby and handicraft group, it is strongly affiliated with educational and ecological programs, including the Johnny Horizon litter cleanup campaign and others.

Visitors are welcome to attend this topical program.

Evening of Recollection

All the ladies of the area are invited to begin Holy Week by attending the Evening of Recollection planned by the Westlake Catholic Women for Monday night.

According to Mrs. Francis Kelly of the Our Lady of Mercy group, Fr. Francis J. Silva, S.J., from the El Retiro Retreat House on the peninsula, will moderate the program.

Mrs. Sal Parise, spiritual director for the Westlake Catholic Women, has announced that the evening will open with a lecture by Father Kelly at 7 p.m. The lecture will be followed by a discussion period at 8 p.m. and a mass will conclude the first portion. Additional discussion sessions will precede the benediction and the evening will close with refreshments.

Mrs. Kelly emphasizes that no reservations are required and no registration fee is involved.

MRS. DAVID RUSHKA and Mrs. Raymond Leahy, chairmen of the modeling committee for the Holy Angels Fashion Show and Dinner Dance, have released the names of the parishioners who will be modeling the latest in attire for spring at the April 17 event.

For the first time in the history of the Holy Angels Women's Guild fashion shows the list of models contains as many men and women as the entire concept of the show has been changed.

The luncheon showing has been abandoned and in its place the committee has arranged for a dinner-dance at Fisherman's Wharf and the styles to be modelled will reflect the latest for both men and women.

The Fashion of Westlake and Arthur's of Westlake are cooperating in the program along with radio station K.S.F.O., which will supply a silver tongued staff member to do the commentary.

Those named by Mrs. Rushka and Mrs. Leahy include Mrs. Sebastian Basilica, Mrs. Thomas Bocci, Jr., Mrs. Louis Caserza, Mrs. Patrick Callagy, Dinah Jolly, Mrs. Robert Padreddii, Mrs. Gordon Mann, Mrs. Nancy Pizzi, Mrs. Conrad Reich and Mrs. James Swain, along with the members of the men's club, James Arena, Earl Cesena, Gerald Delfino, Dennis Flannery, Joseph Gumina, Henry Norman, Robert Padreddii, John Provenzale, Frank Scarpino and Robert Simon.

The theme of the evening will be "Reflections by the Bay" and guests will gather at 7 p.m. in the banquet room of Sabella's for a no-host cocktail hour. Dinner, the fashion show and dancing to a live orchestra will follow.

For those interested in tickets, Mrs. Kelly advised, call Mrs. Ursula Haught, 755-1046, or Mrs. Joan Sharpen, 755-9645.

THE MEMBERS OF THE ART GUILD of Pacifica are preparing for the annual Mothers Day Art Show early in May with a good deal of industry. Newcomers to the guild and hopefully to the exhibit, are Austin L. Newcomb of Colma, Nellie C. McNickle of San Francisco and Daniel B. Fiddler of Pacifica.

Three males topped Westmoor's list of mathematic students in achievement as a result of the Natonal Mahematics Exam.

Scoring highest was junior Eric Bogatin, followed by seniors Doug Napp and Jefferey Harris.

These three students' scores will be added together to come up with a composite score which will serve as Westmoor's team score, and be compared to team scores from other high schools throughout the state and nation for honors.

Girl Scouts Will View 'Experience'

Daly City's Brownie Troop 436, directed by Mrs. M. Irwin, will view Bing Crosby's "The San Francisco Experience."

Many of the now over 250,000 visotors to view the newest cinematic adventure since cinerama have been young people in organized groups. Schools, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and even birthday parties have been represented at special performances designed to "turn you on."

The mind-expanding show is the first of its kind in the world produced by Electrovision for family entertainment for offering information and educating in an entertainment fashion.

The giant screen on which 30 computerized projectors cast thousands of images, and the soundtrack in quadrosonic sound provide a new environmental experience in theatre, where one can re-live 200 years of history including the earthquake and fire of 1906, the building of the Bay Bridge, and cameo visits to and explanations of a full term vacation, and-or a classroom history lesson.

St. Veronica's Women to Hear Former Pastor

St. Veronica's Women's Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the school cafetorium on Alida Way.

The program chairman, Mrs. James Swinfard, will present the Rev. James P. McKay, formerly of St. Veronica's parish, who will speak.

Father McKay was born and raised in San Francisco, attending both St. Joseph's College and St. Patrick's Seminary.

He is director of vocations for the Archdiocese of San Francisco, director of cemeteries, grand chaplain of the Young Men's Institute (Y.M.I.), and assistant chaplain of the San Francisco Serra Club.

DC Pair Directs Play 'Oklahoma!'

The American Musical Theatre and Academy, in association with the City of San Bruno, will present Roger's and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!" in Capuchino High School Auditorium at 1501 Magnolia Ave. on April 2, 3, 9, 10, 16 and 17 at 8:30 p.m.

His leading roles include such musicals as Bye Bye Birdie, Music Man, Flower Drum Song, Brigadoon, Most Happy Fella, Man of la Mancha, and most recently The Unsinkable Molly Brown.

This exciting story of life within Indian Territory, which is now the state of Oklahoma, takes place just after the turn of the century. The musical was first produced by the Theatre Guild of New York in 1943 and has continued being one of the most popular musicals throughout the 30 year span.

The show includes such musical numbers as "Oh, What a Beautiful Mornin'," "I Cain't Say No," "People Will Say We're in Love," and "The Surrey With the Fringe on Top." It is a show for all ages and full of laughter and romance in the western tradition.

Jack Brooks, of Daly City, is the producer and director for "Oklahoma " 'A talented singer and actor, Brooks played Nathan Detroit in the company's first Bay Area production of Damon Runyan's Guys and Dolls.

Brooks specializes in musical theatre. His New York credits include, Greenwillow, Subways Are For Sleeping, I Can Get It For You Wholesale, Student Prince, and Camelot. He has also directed such hits as Brigadoon, Carnival, Tom Jones, Fantasticks, and Bells Are For Ringing.

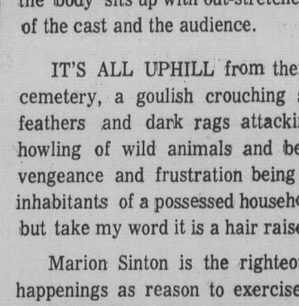
His wife, Carolyn, who appeared on stage when she was nine years old at Hillbarn, is the musical director for the coming production. Her most praised and successful role in the Bay Area was in The Apple Tree in which she played the part of "Eve" in the double casting.

Mrs. Brooks has also appeared in CSM's Brigadoon, Hillbarn's "Absence of a Cello," and The San Mateo Light Opera Workshop's production of East Side Story in which she played the part of "Maria."

Miss Marvel Gardner, a life-long resident of Daly City, received her Bachelor of Arts as a music major from San Francisco State College two years ago, maintaining a 3.8 grade point average. Her experiences in music is extensive.

She has been actively involved in school choirs, chamber and madrigal groups, glee clubs, opera workshops, and dance bands for fourteen years. She is assisting Mrs. Brooks in the musical direction of the AMTA chorus.

Paul and Diana Archer of Daly City also are participating in the coming production. Pal, who plays the cowboy, Slim, also played "Society Max" in the production of Guys and Dolls. Diana, an NCR bookkeeper in South San Francisco, is making her debut in musical theater.



Barbara Bladen

THE MARQUEE

Brandy break during intermission is called for at Hillbarn these weekends, to calm the shattered nerves created by their current melodrama, "The Devil of the Second Stairs." It's enough to scare you into apoplexy, if not nightmares.

George Herman's play is corny, bordering on the supernatural with its walking corpses, possessed spirits and howling wolves on eerie windy nights. But along with Sam Rolph's spooky set and special effects, together with Robert Brauns' highly suspenseful staging, most of the nervous laughter from the audience is a cover-up for some thoroughly frightening moments.

IT'S ONLY a play you say, gripping your escort's coat sleeve. But you find your hand slipping into his (or even hers) for some reassurance that the unknown, unidentified, inleashed devil of the drama doesn't creep past the rows of tombstones toward the audience. I thought some of the screams from the back of the auditorium were sound effects to heighten the drama on Saturday night, only to learn later that they were overly imaginative patrons who succumbed to the tension of the engrossing production, even before the real chills set in.

The action centers around the Priory of St. Helen of the Cross in the cold, barren region of upstate Minnesota where eight nuns are praying over the coffin of a sister. Suddenly there is a terrifying rush of warm wind through the chapel and with a blood curdling moan that crescendoes to an uncanny scream, the body sits up with out-stretched arms and scares the wits out of the cast and the audience.

IT'S ALL UPHILL from there with midnight digging in the cemetery, a goulish crouching spectre in (fluorescent paint) feathers and dark rags attacking the good sisters, constant howling of wild animals and bereaved spirits and a tale of vengeance and frustration being pieced together by the anxious inhabitants of a possessed household. More I cannot tell you . . . but take my word it is a hair raiser.

Marion Sinton is the righteous senior nun who takes the happenings as reason to exercise her rights and writes to the bishop for help. Her assumption of authority goes against the best judgment of her superior, played with calm indignation by Muriel Rice. These two veteran Hillbarn actresses create and maintain the real tension of the drama in their struggle for leadership.

KELLMAR GRAY adds much to the dark suspense as she poses a threat to the all-white Catholic order by being the only Negro and having experience in the Bahamas with witchcraft and sorcery. She is a prime suspect for responsibility of the phenomenon. The actress is good in conveying believability, but her diction is not always clear and many of her lines are lost to the audience.

Connie Toth is excellent as the deceased member. Aside from ghoulish makeup and shrouds, she holds her hands and walks in such a macabre way, if she'd have even looked in my direction, I'd have run screaming for the lobby, taking another platinum haired critic with me in tow. Like Peter Pan, we believed, we believed!

Adding emphasis to the drama was Rose Roskin, Leslie Whelan, Barbara Forbes, Trudy Richard and Erma Banks as perplexed nuns caught in a holocaust they couldn't explain or understand.

THE ONLY jarring note to the otherwise effective production was an overly zealous sound effects man who made the wind sound like low flying 747's, and the howling wolves like mischievous intruders. There is enough menace in the sounds without undue amplification.

If any of this tempts you to enjoy a frightening night's entertainment, be assured there is much more to tax your imagination and tingle your spine . . . I wouldn't spoil the story for the world.

The Jeff Scene

By SUE McALLISTER

The Bagel Bummers and Sinor's Sissies have clashed for the third time. So far the teams had competed in baseball, football and soccer. The struggling Bummers failed to win — again. The persistent Bummers then challenged the Sissies to a volleyball game and finally on March 25 were allowed the "sweet smell of success."

Plans are being made for a game of water polo (after that, speculation is being made whether or not they will compete in Ping-pong?).

Doug Harrison, senior class president, recently represented Jeff in the Presidential Classroom in Washington, D.C. Doug toured our nation's capitol and saw governmental processes first hand. He is the third student to have this experience and the program will continue next year with another Jefferson senior.

The Easter Bunny has arrived at Jeff (it's hiding in the art room) with the annual Easter Egg Sale held each year by the Art Club. The club will be selling their wares as long as the supply holds out.

During the week of March 22-24th each class had an opportunity to use a day to promote class spirit and to make some as well.

A Three Day Rotary Confab Plans Drafted

Sydney Worthington, District 513 Governor's representative and Rick Karrer, Daly City club conference chairman, today announced plans for the 33rd Annual District 513 Rotary Conference.

Worthington stated that 1971 is the year of the three (3) day weekend. By checking the calendar he found there was no three-day weekend holiday in the month of April. So, he stated, Rotary District 513 is establishing one for all good Rotarians . . . April 22-25, the dates of the conference at the Airport Marina Hotel, Burlingame.

Plans are being made to motiviate all Rotarians in District 513 (San Mateo and all counties to the Oregon Border on the coast) to take advantage of the three-day holiday weekend Rotary Conference.

Highlights of the program will include men and women's golf at the world famous California Golf Club, exclusive ladies' tours, presentation by 1st Vice President of Rotary International Stanley E. McCaffrey, a Silver Ball-Jolly Up, official delegate of President Bill Walk and humorist speaker Vince Lemmon, debunking of present Governor Ray Winther and presentation of new (incoming) Governor Charlie Strope of Eureka.

OCEANA HIGH SCHOOL students Eileen Tanaka and John Tse are "wishing" for a successful P-TA Rummage Sale to raise money for scholarships. The sale will be April 2, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and April 3, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Fairmont Shopping Center, next to Haran Fabrics.

Students were filling out their programs last week for next year's classes. A completely new Social Science program is being instituted due to the recent reduction of units required for graduation.

The new program consists of 30 units of Social Science courses to be taken during the student's first three years of high school. The courses will each be worth 10 units, and are introduction to Social Science, American History and Government, and 10 units worth of Social Science electives.

Tentative elective courses will include Ethnic Studies, World Affairs and Youth and the Law.

New and tentative courses in the English and Fine Arts Department include Art History, Jewelry, Humanities, Contemporary Literature — Comtemporary Poetry, The American Novel — Beowulf-Shakespeare, and Popular Literature — Mass media-Short Story.

REHEARSALS FOR the school play "By The Skin of Our Teeth" are in progress. Five performances of Thornton Wilder's satirical masterpiece are scheduled to begin around the second week of May.

Social Dance Class Starting

A new eight-week social dance class will be offered April 13-June 8 (no class April 20), at Westlake School, 80 Fieldcrest Drive, Daly City.

Rhumba and foxtrot will be the featured dances, instructed by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wagner.

Classes are now open to all adults and sessions will be divided according to the following schedule:

Beginners, 7:30-8:30 p.m.; intermediates, 8:45-9:45 p.m.; Fee, $8 a couple, $4 a single partner.

Registration is requested prior to the first class session. To register, students should send name, address, phone and fee to the Daly City Recreation Department, 134 Hillside Boulevard, Daly City.

GUITAR LESSONS

Spring guitar classes, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Division will be offered for a ten-week session beginning March 31. All classes are ununder the instruction of Bunnie Gregoire and will be held in the Coral Room of the War Memorial Community Center.

WHS Horseman's Club Collects Aluminum

Westmoor's Horseman's Association has set $1500 as the ultimate goal needed for members to spend a weekend on a horse ranch. The club is working toward its goal by collecting aluminum cans and sending them to a local aluminum company for recycling.

Club members are collecting cans from the homes of community members and by hiking around the Bay Area and picking up cans along the way.

One parent the club contacted recently donated 1500 sheets of ditto paper used to publicize their campaign.

The school has felt the full brunt of the campaign as association members collected returnables from the school garbage cans. Mrs. Martha Wright, the club adviser, works with the faculty collection.

N. County School Board Candidates' Forum

Jefferson High School District

Dale Buettgenback

Thomas LaFlesh

Ruth Boudinot

Albert Teglia

Question: What, in your opinion, is the role of a trustee? and, what, in your judgment, qualifies you to be a trustee?

TEGLIA — As an elected officer of the State, a trustee must enforce all laws pertaining to his jurisdiction. He must represent all the citizens of his district and provide the best education possible with the means available. My qualifications: Nineteen years working experience with a neighboring high school district; four years experience as a board member, the past two years as board president; active leadership in the San Mateo County School Board's Association, where I am presently vice president; a member of the Delegate Assembly of the California School Boards Association representing the counties of San Francisco, San Mateo and Marin. I believe that I bring an intelligent, well-balanced outlook, openmindedness and a willingess to serve my community.

BUTTGENBACK — To establish policies for the district as a representative of the community, to serve as an intermediary for the solving of problems which confront students, staff and community, to see that in the eyes of the laws the district fulfills its obligation as a public agency to give each child its right to an opportunity to learn. Qualifications: I have been an elementary trustee for six years and am currently involved in schools and the community. I feel I can add to this by aiding the articulation and lines of communication between elementary and high school district. In addition I have been a resident of the district since 1955 and have two children attending two of the high schools in the district.

BOUDINOT — Throughout the district, problem-solving with staff, and community, listening, looking and caring — all toward the end of seting policies and adopting a budget and otherwise fulfilling the legal role established by the Education Code. Qualifications: Sixteen years residence in and hence familiarity with the area. Thirty-three pupil years contact with elementary teachers and principals via our four childrens' schooling. Eleven student-years contact with high school teachers and administrators via same. Ten years service as trustee in Laguna Salada District.

A lot of exposure to and practice in problem-solving. Extensive studying and understanding of school finance matters locally and in Sacramento. A commitment to work for relevant education for youth. An openminded receptiveness to creative ideas and innovations responsibly initiated at any level.

LAFLESH — The trustee is the spokesman of the voters to the school district. He sets guidelines along which the affairs of the school district are guided. He must use the knowledge of educational affairs that comes from having been on a board, and intelligently apply this knowledge in accomplishing from the school district what the community wants from the districts.

Especially important is contact with the many diverse segments of the community and the ability to modify his own personal biases for the good of the children and the community.

Qualifications: As a trustee on an elementary board, I bring experience in educational matters and experience in speaking for you on the board to the high school district.

As a trustee developing elementary schools for Mt. San Bruno, I bring the vitally needed knowledge of school developing and of the area to the high school board for use in developing a high school.

As a person interested enough in the people of the district to go out and meet them in their homes, I reflect your views, your thoughts, and your voice on the board.

As a person independent of the cities of the area and uninterested in city politics, I devote my full attention to furthering the interest of the children and the voters of the district.

As a representative of all 25 school board members within the high school district, I bring the experience of already representing the whole district, not just one portion.

As a person employed (at Schlage Lock Co.) in a field demanding clear thought, I will devote the time, the experience of private industry, and the knowledge of the latest developments to our district for the benefit of all of us.

I bring to you and to the district a willingness to listen, a willingness to respond, and the knowledge of how to respond.

Question: Do you favor modular scheduling? Why?

ALBERT TEGLIA (incumbent) — I am in favor of modular scheduling for the academically orientated and motivated student or student with special interests who can take advantage of and use the opportunity provided by modular scheduling to develop his potential. However, the student who is not self-motivated nor is able to be motivated by modular programming needs more structed time provided by traditional scheduling.

DALE BUETTGENBACK — Yes. From a philosophical point of view, I believe it provides more opportunity for the students to develop according to individual abilities.

RUTH BOUDINOT — Yes. I strongly support modular scheduling because it affords a flexibility of programming to meet needs of individual students. Modular scheduling can truly make school a worthwhile experience for all youngsters if used to its fullest advantage by an alert staff willing to work hard for best results. Or, without recognition of its potential advantage, it can be a mechanical juggling of schedules.

It deserves the joint effort of a dedicated staff, an underd standing community and an involved student body. Modular scheduling, like open plan school buildings, is only an organiational technique which relies, in the long run, on creative human beings to give it value.

THOMAS LAFLESH — If a student already knows how to use his time for studying, modular scheduling will help him. If the student is not mature enough to study during his free time, modular scheduling will hurt him because it gives the student so much free time during which no one is making sure he studies. Too many of our students, from ninth grade through the twlefth, are being hurt under modular scheduling becaue they do not study when they should.

If a student plans to go to college, modular scheduling will help him by giving him a sample of how college schedules its classes. If a student does not go to college, or goes only to evening classes, modular scheduling will not help him since he does not need the sample of how college schedules its classes.

Modular scheduling helps all students by letting some classes be longer than other classes. You remember gym classes where it took 15 minutes to change into gym clothes and 15 minutes to shower and dress into street clothes? This left only 15 minutes out of a 45-minute period to kick the ball around on the field. If we combine two periods in a row, this gives us an hour on the field. That's enough time to do something. We can do the same thing with homemaking, shop, and laboratory classes. We can do this without modular scheduling.

Modular scheduling seems to help college preparatory students that additionally have good study habits. Most of our high school students are not both. For their benefit, I would review modular scheduling and see if it can be modified to benefit all students.

Question: What are the most serious problems facing your district today? What are your possible solutions?

TEGLIA — The most serious problem facing the district is finances. Our budget has been reviewed and trimmed. We operate with a very small undistributed reserve of $200,000 for a budge of $10.5 million. The only plausible solution I see is statewide, equitable school support. Other major problems such as drug abuse can be worked out on a local bsis through cooperation among students, teachers and the community.

BUETTGENBACK — Our committment to do our best to give every child an opportunity to develop their individual talents while also helping them to be responsible citizens of the community in which we all live. To obtain this, I believe we need continued evaluation of mod scheduling, unique staff and school problems. In addition there needs to be increased involvement of the community with the schools so the children are better able to understand the business, government and social world. There also needs to be an atmosphere of mutual goals for staff, the children and the community.

I have tried very hard in my six years on the elementary board to create this kind of atmosphere, and it would be my intention to continue to be receptive to discussing and solving problems. The third problem is one of developing consistent and adequate financing for the schools.

It is my experience, that if you go to legislators with specific programs and plans it is possible to accomplish much more than to merely go asking for more money. This is why I favor evaluating and refining our programs so as to make them the best possible.

BOUDINOT — The most serious problem facing Jefferson Union High School District faces other districts as well. It is the unreadiness or unwillingness of so mnay parents to allow youngsters to accept responsibility for their own selves to the extent to which they are able from a very young one.

School districts can provide situations in which youth can prove its ability for self-management and can present these situations at increasingly young age levels so that we parents will gradually begin to take for granted that young people have this capability.

LAFLESH — Financing, (priority one above), is also our most serious problem. Our school district, with a population of 100,000 people, is a voice that must be heard at the state level. Only through making that voice heard loud and clear will the state realize it must assume a fair share of the costs of education.

Only through strictest economy and getting the most education for each tax dollar can we start to relieve ourselves of our extremely heavy tax burden.

The feeling of non-involvement of citizens and teachers with the school district. If we grow apart, the poblems of not understanding the concerns of each other will make the difficult task of educating thousands of children even worse. Only through increased contact with the community will the board members be able to convey how much the concerns of the district are the concerns of each of us.

The impending development of Mt. San Bruno with a projected population 40,000 to 45,000 persons will have a tremendous effect on the two districts serving the area: Jefferson Union High and Brisbane Elementary. A development of this size will put a heavy burden on our high school facilities. Experience in developing schools in that area will be sorely needed on the high school board.

Question: What are the five highest priorities for achieving quality education in your dstrict? Which of them have been implemented?

TEGLIA — Sound curriculum which is constantly being reviewed to meet needs. This is being done through the district planning council.

Good, competent faculty which our school district is constantly trying to develop and strengthen and maintain through a high salary schedule and fringe benefit program. Our district is No. 1 in salary and fringe benefits in the Bay Area.

An administration aware of the school and community needs that maintains a communication with the residents of the district. We have this kind of administration.

Board relationship with schools and community — open line of communication through open public meetings, meetings in private homes with board members, administration and community residents which we now do through our study sessions and koffee klatches in homes.

A cooperative agreement and working relation with other public jurisdictions within a school district. Ex: Westmoor swimming pool, joint powers agreement with the City of Daly City, the swimming program agreements with the cities of Pacifica and Brisbane, the use of school facilities by both public and private groups.

BUETTGENBACK — A top-level staff, community involvement, curriculum and classroom materials, finances, housing. I believe all of these are presently being implemented at one level or another.

BOUDINOT — The five highest priorities in any district must be:

A staff of people who really care more about reaching children than about teaching a particular subect;

A supportive community of parents who care what is happening to their children in the schools;

Facilities and equipment to provide an unlimited range of experiences for youngsters to test;

Funds sufficient to facilitate achieving these priorities.

These five concepts are not listed in order of importance, since they are all a vital part of quality education and the lack of any one constitutes a serious handicap in meeting the needs of each individual youngster. None of the five is more than partially implemented in the Jefferson Union High School District.

LAFLESH — Adequate financing from the state instead of the local taxpayer. California has dropped its share of financial help to school districts from one-half of costs in the 1950s to less than a third of costs last year. It will be even less this year. You pick up the difference in your local property tax.

Agreement on what the educational obectives of the district should be. Only then can we know if we are accomplishing what we set out to do and, if not, change to do so.

Teachers dedicated to the maximum achievement in each student. Such teachers must be adquately paid for their efforts and encouraged by the district to continue their work. Other teachers should be encouraged to go elsewhere.

Communication between the board and the district, especially the parents, the students, and all district employees (classified, certificated, and administrative). The koffee klaches currently in use should be continued. Additionally, direct, person - to - person contact between board members and voters is an etremely important part of the communications priority.

Coordination between the high school district and the four elemementary districts that serve it to achieve a smooth, continuous transition from elementary school to high school, and to create a total educational package for each child in school.

Question: Should students be given a role in curriculum development, class assignment or textbook selection?

TEGLIA — Curriculum development, yes; class assignment, no; textbook selection, contributing assistance.

BUETTGENBACK — "Yes" on all three . . because of our complex financial structure, it is not always possible for students to be involved in class assigments, but certainly whenever possible their concerns should be utilized. I know some of the schools already have student curriculum advisors, and I agree with this policy.

BOUDINOT — Curriculum development, yes; class assignment, their's yes; textbook selection . . . . there would be serious limits to the feasibility of this as a general rule. There are certainly instances where their participation in book selection would be very relevant.

LAFLESH — Students should have an advisory role in the development of the curriculum they will study, for they bring a point of view not heard often enough in that field. I want proposals for student involvement in class assignments and textbook selecton studied very carefully before being presented for our consideration.

Question: Do you favor: Tenure (as it is known today) for teachers? A modified tenure law? Or no tenure at all? Why?

TEGLIA — I favor a modified law. At present, tenure laws dominate the practical educational process of a school district attempting to remove incompetent teachers. I am in favor of a modified tenure law that will protect teachers' rights and allow the school district to implement a good educational process and together the teachers and school district develop an environment conducive to good education.

BUETTGENBACK — (favors "modified") There needs to be a change in the "for cause only" portion of the law. A system of review by a peer group, such as the one proposed by CSBA (California School Boards Association) would be a help.

BOUDINOT — I favor a modified version of tenure sufficient to protect teachers from a carpicious authority. The profession, if it will, can upgrade its members continually. I prefer to have faith in the profession's ability to do its own policing and will work to help make this a reality in any way I can.

LAFLESH — Tenure, a valuable protection of teachers from arbitrary school boards and administrators, needs changes to make it easier for a school district to remove poor or incompetent teachers. Incompetency is very difficult to prove to the satisfaction of the courts. Some way of removing it from the courts (perhaps using a professional review panel to review these cases) must be found if our faith in the quality of our teachers is to be maintained.

Question: What roles, outside the classroom, should teachers have (i.e., curriculum development, policy-making-decision-making involvement, textbook selection)?

TEGLIA — A teacher should be involved in all facets of a school district.

BUETTGENBACK — Under the Winton Act, teachers have many opportunities to be involved. As professionals, they have a responsibility to advise and make suggestions and to become involved in community life.

BOUDINOT — Teachers should be both encouraged and expected to concern themselves in consideration of all aspects of school. Although the board by law makes the final decisions, these should be made after considering pertinent recommendations from all parties involved. It is my philosophy that those involved in a program should be involved in its solution.

LAFLESH — Teachers should be involved to as large a degree as possible in curriculum development and textbook selection. To ask a teacher to follow a lockstep pattern of teaching a subject, imposed by people outside teaching, is to harm the learning that will be done under that teacher. As with all matters in the district, this must be done within the guidelines of the board.

Teachers should be involved in policy-making in an advisory capacity. The board should seek the advice of all interested in making policy decisions, teachers among them. The decision, however, on policy matters must remain solely with the school board. They were elected to make these decisions representing the voters and only they are directly answerable to you for these decisions.

Question: Do you favor, in principle, so-called "voucher system" proposals?

TEGLIA — At the present time, I cannot see the feasibility of the voucher system. I am not convinced it can be implemented practically and would create more problems than it would solve, if in fact it would solve any.

BUETTGENBACK — The voucher system in the fullest sense of the term will create a

Colma Candidates Night

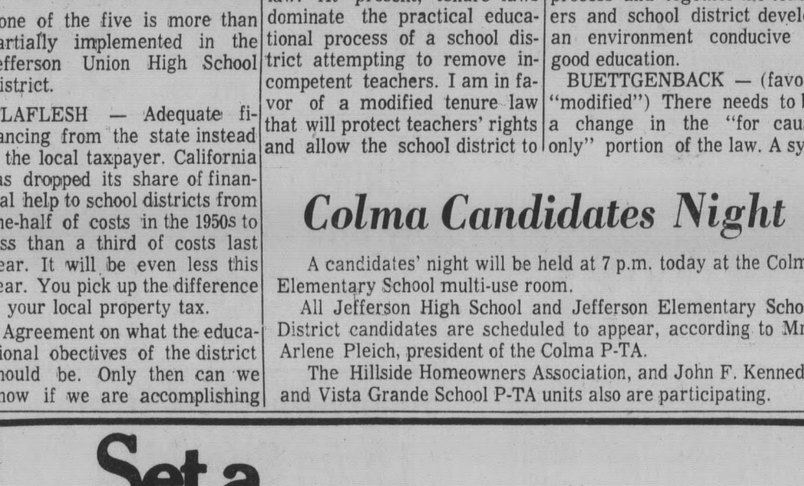
A candidates' night will be held at 7 p.m. today at the Colma Elementary School multi-use room.

All Jefferson High School and Jefferson Elementary School District candidates are scheduled to appear, according to Mrs. Arlene Pleich, president of the Colma P-TA.

The Hillside Homeowners Association, and John F. Kennedy and Vista Grande School P-TA units also are participating.

Set a child free this Easter.

...won't you take the first step so they can follow?



Our therapists teach kids to walk when they can't learn by themselves. And when their parents can't teach them. We teach kids to talk. We teach kids to hear. To control arms, and fingers. To move legs. Toes. We take little kids that are imprisoned inside themselves and help set them free. It takes money. Give to Easter Seals.

Odds to Regan

YOU HEARD IT FIRST — Here we go out on that limb again. Our Source in Sacramento whispers the choice to take Superior Court Judge Kane's place on the bench has been narrowed to two possibilities: Newly appointed Muni Judge Frank Piombo and San Mateo Attorney Gerald Regan. Odds favor Regan to superior. Once again longtime Muni Judge Charles Becker, a Republican, has been passed over.

NO RUMOR, JUST FACT—The J.C. Penney store in the Westlake Shopping Center which recently underwent an extensive renovating job, IS NOT closing. Sorry to disappoint all those rumormongers. How do these oddball stories start? The store under the able management of Don Davis is a topper in sales. Next time the story comes your way — laugh a little and wink.

NOW WE TAKE you over to the inner offices of the First National Bank of Daly City. Bank president Fred Mommer is discussing bank fashions for his female employees. "I approve the wearing of mini-skirts, pant-suits and other modern day styles." The board nods in agreement. One male employee asks Good Old Fred if the ruling also applied to midi-skirts. "In a word I'd like to sum up my feelings on midi-skirts. NO!" Thataboy boss. Right on.

WE ALSO WONDERED why all those elected officials quietly gathered in the back room at Val's Redwood room the other noon (Friday to be exact). Nothing secret. Seems they talked about a youth award program sponsored by GEMCO stores.

In addition to GEMCO representatives, Supervisor Bob St. Clair, Daly City Councilmen Frank Pacelli and Tony Giamonna, D. C. City Manager David Rowe, Chamber of Commerce Manager Peter Markovich, PG&E (also chamber director) Don Halverson and others, that escape our memory at this time, attended. The only puzzling factor was why no publicity or public announcement of the very worthy affair was released? It might squash a lot of puzzled phone calls to this tired old reporter if some sort of word was spread BEFORE similar gatherings of politicians. What???

CARD ROOMS IN PACIFICA is not a dead issue. A citizens' committee has been formed to study the matter and report back to the council. At the last pow-wow on the cardrooms, District Attorney Keith Sorenson told the Pacifica city council that cardrooms were a hangout for shady characters. One in particular has been a thorn in the D.A.'s side since 1956 and he read off a long list of infractions the "shady place" has pulled off over the past 15 years. Such bad stuff as assaults (Barroom fistfight), a holdup, and (heaven forbid) staying open after hours.

WITH ALL THESE things against it, how come it wasn't closed down? And pardon my asking, but also how come they allow gambling at the race track? If the come-back is the Oldie about "The State controls the track." forget it. Our come-back come-back is the races, complete with every imaginable shady character portrayed in "C" grade movies, are also run during the San Mateo County Fair. Lest we forget, there are a few places that sell cards with numbers and the letters BINGO on them. If a person happens to get the right combination he or she is awarded cash or a prize.

THERE ARE PRESENTLY some half-dozen LEGITIMATE cardrooms operating in this county. Some recently were given permits by the cities they operate in. In San Bruno, as an example, the city licenses a cardroom either as a smoke shop, magazine stand, restaurant, etc. A flat fee is charged, plus a gross receipts tax. An official of this city contacted by this writer disputes Sorenson and notes the cardrooms contribute less trouble than most bars. Are cardrooms big moneymakers for cities? Not really! But then, neither are bars, smoke shops, magazine stands, race tracks and Bingo games.

SICK CALL — Broadmoor Police Chief Ray Savage. Recuperating at home from back back. Work load too heavy, chief? . . . Solly Orloff. Surgery at Mt. Zion.

WE AGAIN FIND it necessary to call attention to that silly Mission Street pedestrian crosswalk in Daly City which takes folks from the north corner of Mission and Market streets, deposits them on a tiny unprotected island in the middle of Market Street, routes them westward across Mission INTO A HUGE TRAFFIC CONTROL BOX.

We don't care if this stupid planning was done by the State or the City. It doesn't make it any less stupid!

For kicks run out there right now and watch the old folks struggling to get around that traffic box. To add insult to injury, someone, somewhere actually gets PAID to plan these things.

We're Losing the War Against Drugs

By GEORGE GOLDING

Third of a Series

WE ARE LOSING the war against drugs.

Statistic after statistic indicates drug use is on the increase, especially among teenagers and young adults.

Yet the basic cause of drug use, social pressure, is also the clue to ending the spread of narcotics and other dangerous drugs.

Despite a steady barrage of anti-drug educational programs in every high school district in San Mateo County, drug use continues.

Some of the anti-drug campaigns reach into elementary and junior high schools. Parents and teachers are constantly being supplied information and opinions on drugs, their use, their abuse, how to recognize them, and what to do.

Radio and television stations have been hammering out anti-drug compaigns in eager competition. Magazines and newspapers have poured out anti-drug articles by the hundreds.

When the San Mateo County Drug Abuse Council first met in a hotel room of the Ben Franklin Hotel in 1968, one of their problems was that there was not enough printed information. Now, there are libraries of drug information, lists of anti-drug film, and slide shows, and speakers' bureaus.

But drug use continues.

According to an educator who is close to the problem on the official side, and a heroin addict close to it on the personal side, we have not yet begun to attack in the right place.

Much is being done about drugs, but not enough of what is being done is successful.

According to Ken Graham, a leader of the San Mateo County Drug Abuse Council, "We have to start younger."

According to Dr. Murray Bilmes, a psychologist at Peninsula Hospital, "We can't do anything with the heroin addict. We can help the beginner, the occasional user."

Dr. Bilmes' technique is to guide the user away from the loneliness, or boredom, that made him seek constant use of drugs for relief.

He confirms that, although there are many given reasons for use of drugs, they usually boil down to a few words: "Because everybody else was doing it."

"In certain circles, you have to have a lot of strength of character, not to use drugs.

"A lot of youngsters are now starting because everyone else is doing it.

"Some youngsters take drugs because they cannot otherwise face the word, they are too lonely and isolated.

"Sometimes, they take drugs to deaden their feelings, because otherwise the pain is too much.

"Others, suffering from boredom rather than intense interest, sample LSD, or mescaline, or ups (stimulants) to widen the input to their minds."

Once a person gets to the point of having suffered physical or psychological damage due to the narcotic addiction, or drug dependence, the battle is pretty well lost.

A better battleground is expected to be found in the early years of grade school, where opinions are influenced and the need to be approved by one's associates becomes a major life influence.

"People expect an immediate cure," said Dr. Bilmes. "They want to institute some kind of a program and solve the problem once and for all.

"It's not going to be that easy."

Democracy Handles Difference

Democracy, especially sophisticated democracy as practiced in the United States, generally handles difference and diversity well. It has a much more difficult time with consensus, for without the checks and balances of different opinions democracy is capable of great foolishness.

At first glance this hypothesis seems doubtful, but history plainly warns of large and excited majorities. Most of our really unreasonable and unfair actions have originated in agreement, not disagreement. Only in the milieu of 1941 could the universal fear of a Japanese fifth column have resulted in the mania of American concentration camps. Only after the heady days following the electoral landslide of 1964 could a congress have made as many legislative errors in the name of consensus. A paranoic fear of communism gave birth to the power of Senator Joseph Mc Carthy and the witch hunts of the 50's, and the Tonkin Gulf Resolution was the kind of excited congressional action that could pass by a heavy majority but never by a few votes.

We are again coming to a time of agreement. The American people, whose will can be formidable indeed, are aroused. We have had enough muggings, murders, rapes, burglaries and bombings. We, the people are about to catalyze action. The important thing is not whether the popular demand for law and order will be heard, but whether the results will be rational or irrational, effective or ineffective.

The English had a century long experience with lawlessness and inappropriate response. In 1752 Horace Walpole wrote "One is forced to travel, even at noon as if one was going to battle." Smollett in The History Of England wrote "England was at this period infested with robbers, assassins and incendiaries . . .". One recalls the tale of the man whose pocket was picked while watching the hanging of a pickpocket.

The English answer to this uncivilized uprising in their midst was to increase the number of offenses subject to capital punishment. In the eighteenth century lawlessness and the number of capital statutes grew apace and within this time 150 new offenses were made punishable by death.

In an early application of women's lib these laws were applied to men and women equally and children were not excluded. The death penalty applied to a wide variety of offenses:

Murdering the King

Marking the edges of coins. Maliciously cutting hop binds. Demolishing a church or hospital. Rape. Wandering of soldiers without a pass. Being in the company of gypsies. Murder. Picking of pockets (twelve pence or more).

Merrie England had a real reward for good behavior — life. Under the pressure of public opinion the legislature ground on and on, often passing emergency laws to quiet public clamor and the tumult continued as Englishmen in large numbers continued to risk it all in decades of high and low crime.

The English experience, while not precisely parallel, is deserving of consideration. Certainly, we are not likely to turn to the gallows to solve our problems. But a chilling note can be heard with the recollection of the words of one Colonel Frankland who declared in the House of Commons that since "in this country there is little preventive justice, there must be much penal."

The early stages of our search for order give warning that a panicky and fearful people could again overreact. For just as the English developed a popular and parliamentary mania for one kind of penal law, we could make demands that would ruin our system of justice. To many, the enemy has become the courts, the judges and our criminal procedures. In a frantic search for safety the judge watchers and the over righteous, far from improving things, could do great and lasting harm.

What is required is a broad attack on crime and its causes. Included should be accelerated improvement of the administration of justice: speedier trials, reasonable restraints on the conduct of counsel, penal reform with more emphasis on rehabilitation, and more and better paid police. Most importantly there should be philosophic agreement that humane ideals can never be completely attained but have their best chance in an orderly society.

Letters to the Editor

Comment on Colma Dogs and McCloskey

Editor, The Post:

After having read three articles describing the "dog situtation" in Daly City, I would like to sing the praises of Mr. Brooke. Mr. Brooke is the Peninsula Humane Society deputy who covers all of Westlake, Broadmoor Village, and Daly City. This involves a total of 88,000 people. Who knows the dog population? With his patient cooperation and personal efforts and intolerable dog situation has been greatly improved.

Several months ago I counted a total of 40 dogs living on my block. Only 11 of these dogs were allowed to roam at will. The rest were confined. These 11 dogs were making a terrible mess. A petition was made complaining about the situation and 45 signatures were obtained from other bothered neighbors. This was sent to the Peninsula Humane Society at Coyote Point. Mr. Brooke took the petition and made numerous visits to the named offenders. All but two were finally convinced that their dogs were not appreciated. One dog owner may find himself in court and the other will be the recipient of a citation. The citation will cost him $15 or his dog. Without Mr. Brooke's cooperation we could not have made our block a nicer place on which to live.

If you have a neighborhood dog problem, a petition with five signatures and the address of the offending dog will give the Humane Society a means of correcting the problem. Support the new citation system which allows the deputy to fine continuous offenders or impound the dog. The Humane Society needs citizen cooperation in order to function efficiently. Anonymous phone calls or letters do not help.

Thank you Mr. Brooke.

MRS. THOMAS HUGHES,

Editor, The Post:

I feel absolutely desolate over the way everyone keeps cutting up old Pete McCloskey, the way they keep calling him an opportunist and inferring he's made the war his thing, like maybe he's a vulture hovering over the carcass. All right, maybe he has become a national figure due to his position on the war, and maybe he is sort of one-subject politician like Senator McGovern. What's this supposed to prove? After all, just because a couple of sources have mentioned him as presidential material doesn't mean that he's making it big on the war. No sir.

OK, so he did say flatly a few times that the South Vietnamese would fold without us while now they're crunching viably through Laos. It doesn't automatically follow that he wants the enemy to win or anything. And just because he had a lover's grip on Nixon during the election while now he's talking impeachment — well, that doesn't make him some kind of chameleon. I mean, circumstances do change, right?

But what really gets me all anguished up is when I hear people criticizing his use of Stanford as a political forum. After all, Stanford may not be in San Mateo County, but it's still in the U.S.A., right? One guy even had the nerve to tell me that Pete was catering to Stanford paranoia and exploiting the Berkeley syndrome, whatever that means. Somebody else even faulted him for driving a Volkswagen. Something about being rich but trying to maintain a peasant image with his constituents.

Personally, I like to think of Pete as a Kennedyish, politically sensitive, look-before-you-jump, availer - of - fortuitous-chances type of person, not a scheming opportunist. After all, you've got to at least give a man the benefit of the doubt, right? What I mean is, he could just be following his conscience. Couldn't he?

N. County Candidates' Forum: Vouchers

state school system. This would mean an end to local control and local school districts as we know them today.

BOUDINOT — With the limited amount of information available to the public on use of vouchers, I cannot unqualifiedly endorse or oppose possible voucher systems. However, from what I have learned so far, my reactions are somewhat negative. At best, there would be pitfalls to be avoided and problems to be solved before positive results from a voucher system could be assured.

LAFLESH — The ideas behind the voucher system are excellent, especially the attempt to make schools more responsive to parents when there is a failure to provide needed education. There are many hidden aspects to the voucher system which worry me. We can make schools measure up to our standards without going into a program full of hidden loopholes.

Planned Program Budgeting Systems (PPBS) is being implemented in school districts throughout California. Under PPBS, the community (not the school system) decides what the schools should strive for. The school budget is planned with specific statements of how much money will go to each of the objectives of the community.

At the end of each year, the question is asked "How close did we come to meeting the community's objectives?" That question is, to me, the most important question a board can ask. The answer to that question will be my answer to a voucher system.

Goals of Learning

If you were asked to establish the educational goals for elementary school instruction, what would you list as number one?

Thanks to Jess Parks, Principal of Franklin D. Roosevelt School, we have the results of a poll of both parents and teachers who were asked to make such an evaluation.

Parks met with parents of students who attend Franklin D. Roosevelt School and asked them to evaluate 36 educational goals and establish priorities for the goals in the order they thought would be most important.

He also presented the 36 goals to the teachers of his school and asked them to make the same evaluation and to establish priorities.

The teachers, he learned, placed high priorities upon humanistic goals, while the parents proved to be more interested in their children's learning what one parent termed the basic skills.

This, Parks concluded, shows the necessity for more dialogue between parents and teachers as to the purpose of education.

As a result, the staff of Franklin D. Roosevelt School will be holding a series of meetings with parents who wish to be involved in the development of functional plans.

AN ANALYSIS of the results of the pool show that proficiency in reading was rated as the top priority with reading comprehension rated as number one; reading skills as number two and the use of reading as number ten.

Proficiency in math occupied two of the top ten priorities. Math comprehension was rated as number three and math concepts as eighth. Spelling received the seventh rating; citizenship the ninth. Listening skills was rated as number four while something called motivation toward learning was rated sixth.

It is surprising to learn that the people who were polled placed very low priority on music skills and appreciation and music enjoyment placing them 33 and 36 on the list. In a like manner enjoyment of the fine arts was rated extremely low, number 35.

DESPITE TEACHER interest in humanistic goals, personal adjustment was rated no higher than number 16. Family life education dropped to a low priority of 24th despite all the talk about sex-education. Studying science and learning foreign languages were rated in the last ten of the 36 goals. Writing skills dropped out of the "readin', writin' and 'rithmetic" list of priorities to number 13.

While the number of parents who responded was small, it seems that they are saying with a loud voice that they want their children to be trained in the old-fashioned skills before any time is spent on topics dealing with adjustments.

Perhaps it is time for the so called progressive educators to pay heed.

The adults of today send their children to school to learn reading, writing, arithmetic, spelling, citizenship, geography, history, correct speaking and similar skills. Social adjustment is secondary.

Law Enforcement Communications

Radio service in San Mateo County is already a form of consolidated service with the county communication service providing lease purchasing, installation and maintenance.

Improvements in this area will have to come from improved technicological developments such as digetal tele-communications systems in patrol units which would not require additional use of the already overburdesed police radio frequencies.

San Francisco Police Department is presently experimenting with an item such as this which allows 100 transmissions to be made in the same time as would a normal voice message.

The new California law enforcement telecommunications system, CLETS, gives the criminal justice system a new tool which has relieved the old overburdened teletype system.

The CLETS terminals allow us to obtain on line information from P.I.N., auto status and N.C.I.C. It provides us with a device to communicate with a specific agency or all agencies on a subject matter on an immediate basis. Formally transmissions took several hours before messages went from San Mateo County to Santa Clara County. Now it is a matter of minutes. (San Bruno Police Department)

Capture in D.C.

Police Hold Slaying Suspect

A 17-year-old San Francisco boy was captured at gunpoint in a Daly City supermarket parking lot on Saturday after he allegedly stabbed and robbed an elderly babysitter.

The 64-year-old victim, Mary Graham, was reported in critical condition at Kaiser Hospital in San Francisco.

Arrested five blocks from the scene of the attack was Stanley Allen Gee, a parolee from the California Youth Authority.

Police said the victim was on her way home about midnight from a motel where she had been babysitting for a friend when Gee tried to grab her purse. They said she put up a struggle and the suspect plunged a hunting knife into her left side.

An unidentified motorist witnessing the incident at the corner of Eastlake and Mission streets stopped to help Mrs. Graham and the attacker fled on foot, police said.

Officers John Kirby and John Casey spotted Gee in the parking lot of the Cala Foods supermarket. When Kirby tried to apprehend the suspect he reportedly brandished a knife.

Mrs. Graham's purse was recovered from Gee, police said.

The boy had previously undergone psychiatric care for a mental disorder, police said.

He was booked for armed robbery, assault with a deadly weapon, and assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

Better Business

Government Sale Brings Junk Mail

By LORENE BEASLEY

A large percentage of the so-called junk mail clogging the nation's mailboxes and causing ecology problems is the result of government sales of names and addresses to businessmen.

The government mailing lists have a great appeal because they contain a specialized set of names which makes them exceptionally useful for advertising purposes and they usually come in a form easily converted into address labels. Also, the lists are cheap, generally cost only as much as it costs the agency to reproduce them. A sporting goods store recently paid $140 for approximately 143,000 names and addresses of licensed gun dealers and collectors as recorded on seven computer tape rolls.

Not all government agencies sell names. A questionnaire sent out to 50 Federal agencies checking their policies of selling mailing lists found that "some do and some don't." The critics of the sale of mailing lists by Federal agencies argue.

"The Federal Government has no place in the business of preparing and selling mailing lists" and a growing number of lawmakers agree. Representative Robert H. Steel of Connecticut recently introduced legislation to prohibit the sale of mailing lists to direct mail advertising firms by federal agencies and a number of Congressmen have signed up in support of related bills.

The Federal agencies that do sell names contend that the 1967 Freedom of Information Act requires such sales. They argue that the law's purpose was to curb secrecy by opening such Federal records to the public and that they cannot refuse to sell their lists.

Mayors Rap Planning by BART

The San Mateo County Council of Mayors Friday heard a slide presentation on where the planning is today on the BART extension to the International Airport.

The reception was not entirely friendly.

The subject was gaveled to a halt at the South San Francisco meeting shortly after Pacifica Mayor Nick Gust accused San Francisco of simply trying to build a system "to move 21 million people into San Francisco from the airport.

"I'd like to see a system that would serve our county," he added.

Keith Bernard, project coordinator and Larry Dahms, project director for the Airport Access Project had outlined a system which will alternately be subway and elevated after leaving the Daly City BART connection station and following the old Muni Railroad route out to the airport area.

They answered Gust by saying that "BART is a third party in this. Its main committment is to a regional concept."

The project study report is due in two months, they said. It has been put together in a year after San Mateo and San Francisco counties each put up $77,000; BART put up $30,000 and the Department of Transportation (Federal) put up $300,000 for a study.

Although they said there were five problems to be solved, the speakers confined themselves to two of them: what should the route location be and how should it enter the airport.

They said nothing of the other three, which they listed as: "cooperation with Southern Pacific; who pays for the system; and who will manage it."

Several mayors, however, seemed to have another problem in mind — how to make such a system conform to San Mateo County rather than out-of-county needs.

Although they outlined a system with modern, attractive cars and stations, the executives admitted that several basic arrangements had yet to be made. These would include parking at a Tanforan station, drainage problems in the Spruce Avenue area, including an underpass at Spruce, and the problem of entering the airport.

Currently, only two plans for entering the airport area are under consideration. An aerial plan was dropped. These are a subway and a feeder route. The Airport Commission wants word soon on this decision, the mayors were told, because by spending a million dollars now in building its new construction to take the subway, it would save $24 million later, if that is the decision.

In other action, the Mayors' Seismic Committee program was outlined, and it was made clear that an in-depth study was needed.

While mayors disagreed on how serious the earthquake problem is, they felt study should go beyond conformity to present laws, and evaluate and plan for earthquake hazards not presently covered by law. It was noted that Prof. Carl Richter will be available at a seminar at the College of San Mateo the first week of April.

Action was taken to endorse the Board of Supervisors' stand against building a Southern Crossing to the Bay now, and to so inform the governor, on whose desk is a bill to that effect.

Also voted was support of a four-county support measure for Association of Bay Area Governments; but it was made clear that the cities would prefer a nine-county setup.

They also made it clear they are not happy with present legislation in Sacramento which, some said, would simply place another layer of government over the counties.

Burlingame Mayor Dave Martin said that "your new senator is 100 per cent" for such a plan and warned his associates that "you had better talk to your three representatives and convince them they are wrong, or you may have problems."

He said the present Knox bill on regional government leaves local government no representation at all on the regional board.

An attempt by San Carlos Mayor Joe Judge to ask for tax and condemnation powers for ABAG died for lack of a second.

Mayor Nat Landes of Woodside urged a committee be formed to meet with San Francisco Mayor Alioto on recent action by the city's Public Utilities Commission to allow private enterprise to bid on the watershed lands down the Peninsula. Tom Jenkins was appointed to head the committee, and four others added.

Container Action Stalls

Action on an ordinance banning non-returnable beverage containers has been delayed by the County Board of Supervisors until the fate of a South San Francisco ordinance is determined.

The board agreed with a recommendation by District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson to wait for a court decision on a lawsuit challenging the South San Francisco ban before doing any more work on a county ordinance.

Sorenson told the board that the validity of such an ordinance is "uncertain" and involves "serious legal difficulties, including possible interference with inter-state commerce and discrimination between beverages and other types of food products."

The South San Francisco City Council enacted an ordinance banning sale of beverages in disposable containers at the request of a group of high school students. Several local merchants joined to file a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the law. The case is pending in Superior Court in Redwood City.

Mrs. Krips Eyes County Board

Reva Krips, a 15-year resident of San Mateo County, is a candidate for a seat on the San Mateo County Board of Education April 20.

Mrs. Krips lives at 336 St. Francis Boulevard, Daly City, with her husband and daughter, Gilda, a senior at Westmoor High School.

Mrs. Krips will graduate in June from San Francisco State College with a degree in Political Science.

She has attended San Mateo Junior College and San Francisco Law School.

Mrs. Krips has been an active participant in school and conservation activities, first in San Mateo and now in Daly City.

She has done volunteer tutoring, was "Earth Day" panelist at Serramonte High School, Daly City chairman in "Save-The-Bay" and "Open Space" campaigns, and co-chairman of the "Clean Air" petition drive.

Mrs. Krips is a member of the League of Women Voters, Women's American ORT, Westmoor P-TA, Peninsula Co-op, Association of California Consumers, Peninsula Humane Society, Friends of Animals, Save San Francisco Bay Association, Sierra Club.

REVA KRIPS

She also was a member of the Daly City Wilson Riles Steering Committee, publicity chairman for the KQED Auction, and has recently been appointed North County Chairman of Book Bank USA.

"The time has come to seek accountability for every education tax dollar spent in relation to its effect on the children involved," she caimed.

"Our County Board of Education should not be immune from a close scrutiny of its operations and objectives, and how these might best be utilized for the overall physical and mental growth and well-being of the young people it serves," she said.

"The County Board of Education should not be isolated from the community. A member has an obligation to report periodically to her district on what is happening in education on the county level, and how it might benefit the children locally," Mrs. Krips declared.

The great challenge in education to a board member is to keep informed of the new ideas and methods in the field, she said.

One of Those Years at SC

By JERRY LITTRELL

IT HAS BEEN ONE OF THOSE YEARS for Skyline Junior College baseball coach Bill Herron. An obvious prerequisite should have been an unending sense of humor. To take the whole thing too seriously may be hazardous to one's health.

Probably the most acceptable fact of this current campaign is that the Trojans have gone winless in 12 games. They have lost all seven practice games and all five conference outings.

"I've had years similar to this one before as far as won-lost records are concerned but the other little sidelights make this truly a unique experience for me and everyone else associated with our program," Herron noted.

Watching one of Skyline's latest games we noticed only 10 players on the team. That meant that when the Trojans were on the field Herron had only one soul with him on the bench. That's not exactly the normal number for a baseball team. And considering that it is Skyline's first year of baseball operations, it seemed a little more than strange that so few had made the team.

"Actually, we had about 40 or 50 people express interest in playing this year but when it came time to actually show up on the field and begin practice the number narrowed down to about 20 or so," the Trojan mentor continued. "And after that? Well, you wouldn't believe all the things that could happen in one year to one team. I didn't, I know. But they did."

There were the usual drop-outs for outside employment — probably the biggest headache a jaycee coach has to contend with. And, as can be expected, a few had scholastic problems. But there also were a high number of injuries, a few marriage situations that were unexpected (at least by Herron), transfers to other two and four-year institutions and sicknesses to those left over. Others just quit — no reasons given.

When it finally was all over the Trojans had a starting lineup that included three ex-high school catchers an dthree others that didn't even play high school baseball. There were also three pitchers scattered throughout the starting nine.

"I'm never quite certain just how many we'll have for each game," he added. "The number may vary from 10 to 12, depending on circumstances of the previous week. One thing, though, those left really want to play.

"Another problem we had to face was not even having our own park in which to play (all Skyline games are played at Mills High School, Herron's previous coaching position) and just maybe all the problems we had getting the junior college bond passed this past year may have discouraged some players," Herron continued. "It's hard to tell, really, so many things enter into the picture.

"We have a real lack of experience on the mound. One of our pitchers went into an early season game and threw 84 pitches in the first two innings. Another time our pitcher walked 11 players in the first two innings. That's happened twice, come to think of it. I just left him in there to get some mound time. We can't afford the luxury of too many relief pitchers with only 11 or so on the team.

"Another player fell off his motorcycle and hurt his foot so he had to use crutches for a while. The first day we get him back he takes a few swings in batting practice and fouls one off his foot. He's out again for at least another week. We get one pitcher back for a few days, he throws very well and comes down with the flu. Gone for another stretch."

All the while Herron shakes his head slightly as he remembers back through the past few months. He still can't fathom the whole thing but has quietly learned not to queston ("Why me . . . Why is it always me? . . ." may be an appropriate cry). Things will get better next year. That's obvious.

For one thing it looks like the Trojans will have their own diamond on campus. It now has dirt on the infield and could be ready for the '72 season. Then there's a good crop of players in the north peninsula area eligible to come to Skyline. Also there is a nucleus of players this year on which Herron believes a good team can be built next season.

It's going to get better. It has to.

WESTBOROUGH JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL is in need of one more freshman baseball team to fill out its first Easter Tournament roster. All games will be at the school in South San Francisco and are scheduled for every day at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. from April 5 through the 10th.

So far Capuchino, Crestmoor, Sacred Heart, Terman, Southwood, Wilbur and Westborough are in the pairings. Anyone interested in filling the last void contact coach Dave Negherbon at Westborough.

Warriors' Bats Beat Westmoor

The vitally interested group of North Peninsula League baseball coaches that watched Wednesday's South San Francisco-Westmoor encounter came away from the game wondering just what any of them could do to stop the powerful Warrior hitting attack — the most exlposive one the SSF nine has produced in years.

In that early season "crucial" (both teams were 1-0 and co-favorites to win the NPL crown), Bob Brian's Industrial City lads were awesome in pounding out a 12-0 victory over the Rams. Righthander Peter Enea, throwing strikes after getting his early lead, chalked up the shutout on a three-hitter. He struck out three and walked just one in the 90-minute fracas.

It was the only game scheduled in the NPL and almost every coach was there expecting a close-knit battle. With the Warriors' bats snapping out at everything close to the plate, though, it was one-sided before the first inning was over.

South City used to live by the bunt-and-runs tactic. A couple runs an inning without benefit if a hit was the usual routine. Not this year. Shortstop Hank Love, centerfielder Dennis Yamamoto and catcher Brad Dahl each collected three hits apiece with Dahl collecting five RBIs.

Firstbaseman Mike Cholis had two triples and got the Warriors off and winging with two RBIs in the first inning.Enea himself chipped in two hits while second baseman Pat Tolentino added another safety pair.

Leftfielder Brad Keanrs got two of the three Ram hits.

Le Pacini's Sportscripts

True Baseball Fan

Dr. Henry J. Soldati is what you would call a real baseball fan. He doesn't just send notes to sports columnists, he sends copies of personal newsletters to them (which have, presumably, also been sent to fellow baseball buffs and other columnists), eight pages (single spaced) of the State of the Giants, and only one word of Latin in the whole thing.

We like such occasional communiques from baseball fans, because they can say things like, "Back to baseball. (Thank God!)" and we can legitimately print the quote as attributed to someone else and get the thought across without having to worry about letters from outraged basketball and football fans accusing us of prejudice. And if we do get any such letters, we can forward them to Dr. Soldati.

We also like such letters when they happen to coincide with some thought we've been having but have put off printing because publication would require research to back up our theory, and research is a lot of trouble. Not so much, however, when somebody else does it for you.

Like, we've been thinking about how it might be a disavantage to the Giants to be playing their spring training games on regular turf when most of the National League, including their own park, is now Astroturf. Defense, as Dr. Soldati so accurately points out, has been the big Giant weakness for years, and the trading of Ron Hunt and apparent shunning of Hal Lanier were supposedly for the purpose of trying out new hands with quicker feet more suitable for the new fast turfs.

But of what real value is it to try out the new hands — or even to give Lanier a new chance, as is now the case — on the old-style infield? Might not the new turf at Candlestick, which this year includes the added innovation of Astroturf where dirt basepaths used to be, now cause more errors than usual, especially early in the season? And might not, then, virtually new spring tryouts in the infield be necessary well after the season is under way to come up with just the right combination?

WHILE DR. SOLDATI didn't really directly answer any of these speculative questions for us (how should he be able to when even Charley Fox hasn't figured it out yet?), he did provide us with some interesting statistics involving play on Astroturf which might allow an intelligent reader to draw some firm conclusions of his own.

He pointed out that in 1969, when the Giants nearly won the pennant, Hal Lanier "was as good a defensive shortstop as one could want," playing on a conventional surface. But Lanier, he says, showed definite deficiencies in the field last year when 63 per cent of Giant games were played on artificial surfaces. And this season, the good doctor points out, the Giants will be playing about 70 per cent of their games on Astroturf.

In the meanwhile, points out Dr. Soldati, in the American League, only the Chicago White Sox play on a bogus turf, and that only on the infield "grass." Thus, in 1970, National League run production increased 11.2 per cent, American League production only 1.9 per cent.

One of the predictions had been that pitchers, in adjusting to working on the fake surfaces, would throw fewer breaking pitches and more high hard ones, which would increase the long ball output. It was a worthwhile prediction. The NL increased its homeruns 15 per cent, the AL only 5.8 per cent.

Dr. Soldati points out a piece in Sports Illustrated last year by one Peter Carry, who said that outfielders would "bunch in" toward left and right center in order to prevent the fast bounding ball from skipping through to the fences, thus inferring that there would be more triples. In 1970 NL hitters increased their triple output 17.6 per cent, while in the AL there was no increase at all.

Also predicted was a decrease in the use of the sacrifice bunt. Last year the NL sacrificed 8.1 per cent less, while the AL increased its use of the strategy by 4.2 per cent.

TO FURTHER QUOTE the doctor:

"Two National League outfits installed artificial surfacing before the 1970 season opened. Consequently, each of these (San Francisco and St. Louis) played nearly two-thirds of their games on some form of bogus turf.

"And, both the Giants and the Cards had increases in run production and in home-runs well out of proportion to the league as a whole. (In total runs, their increments were, respectively, 25 and 30 per cent. In homers, the corresponding advances were 25 and 21 per cent.)

"Paradoxically and inexplicably (at least by me), the Cardinals actually had less doubles than in 1969 (and no change in triples), . . . San Francisco, on the other hand) was better than the rest of the league in their advances in all the offensive categories — including triples and doubles."

Another interesting statistic dug up by Dr. Soldati: Gaylord Perry, who many experts predicted would be damaged by the artificial turf because of his dependence on the "Super Sinker," actually did better last year on Astroturf than he did off it. Of his 329 total innings, Perry pitched 228 on artificial surfaces. His ERA on the fake stuff was 3.04, which was less than his overall mark of 3.20.

RANDOM THOUGHTS: Perhaps one of the reasons for more long balls in the past decade or so is the mandatory use of the hard helmet. Given the added confidence a piece of well-placed armour can offer a guy, hitters are more prone now than they were say 15 years ago to dig in on a fast ball pitcher.

Some fans, in noting that there seem to be more set lineups nowadays than there were in the era of the Stengl platoon craze, think that managing philosophy has changed. Not so. It's just that there aren't that many genuine big league players to go around, anymore. If a manager can find eight good ones, as a matter of fact, he's got a pennant contender — if he can keep that starting eight healthy. We always felt that Stengel did so much platooning as much for the purpose of keeping all that talent happy as for winning strategy. Hell, he probably could have won with a set lineup of any eight men on the roster going eenie-meanie minee-mo.

Another thing we like about baseball over all those other sports. It is one of the very few sports, not including football and basketball, where, except for the size of the field and a few other relatively minor wrinkles to protect the little kids, the rules are the same, from Little League on up to the Biggies. That helps us senile old cats who get totally confused, for instance, in switching from a college to a pro basketball game. We keep doing things like yelling for Jeff Mullins to stall.

We aren't going to endear ourselves to

JESD Might Reduce Its Rec Funding

The Jefferson Elementary School District plans to renew its recreation contract with the City of Daly City, but the sum it will appropriate might be less than this year's $46,000.

Trustees unanimously voted to inform the City Council that the JESD's budgetary problems might dictate a reduction in funds allocated under the five-cent Civic Center Act.

Trustee Bill Schumacher's original motion that funds would be reduced was tempered to "may reduce" at the urging of Board Chairman Ed Tomasello, who chided Schumacher for making curtailments in the recreation program "without examining the situation."

Tomasello said he couldn't back the motion with that "poor approach."

Trustee Joe Lewkowitz pointed to the value of the city's recreational program, explaining that children have energy to play off in the summer.

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, who with Schumacher has opposed the allocation of such a large sum to the city, said she believed some of the Civic Center Fund money should go toward paying for noonyard supervisors, most of whom might be eliminated next year.

Palm Sunday Observance at Broadmoor

Palm Sunday will be observed and celebrated Sunday at the Broadmoor Presbyterian Church, 377 Eighty-seventh Street, Daly City.

A 7:30 a.m. men's breakfast, with sons invited, will be held.

Rod Barnes is the head cook.

Ken Gillespie will be the song leader.

A men's quartet, with Carl Eagle the pianist will sing and the speaker will be Davis Illingsworth, the executive of the Presbyterian Synod.

Crawford Aden will preside.

The worshippers at the 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. services will be presented lapel crosses made of palm leaves by the high schoolers, through Ray Fisher.

There is to be Palm Sunday music with children being baptized. The sermon will be, "The Way the Master Rides," preached by the Rev. Herbert Tweedie.

Holy Week at St. Martin's

Holy Week, April 4 through April 10, will be observed in a variety of ways by the people of St. Martin's Episcopal Church, 777 Southgate Avenue, Daly City.

The Rev. Timothy Rudolph, pastor, said that Palm Sunday this year, April 4, will be a special occasion for the local church as two memorials will be dedicated to God in loving memory of James Cartwright who died last May.

Reverend Rudolph said that an Aumbry and a Sanctuary lamp will be dedicated in Jim's memory. These are most appropriate memorials, the Pastor said, because Jim had been the regular and faithful server at the early Sunday services of Holy Communion.

The public, and especially friends of the Cartwright family, are invited to take part in the Palm Sunday service.

Monday through Thursday at 8 p.m., April 8, services will be held at St. Martin's — featuring addresses by friars of the Society of St. Francis, and Episcopal order of monks founded over 50 years ago.

"Of the more than 25 religious orders in the Episcopal and Anglican churches, the Society of St. Francis is by far the largest and most significant," according to Pastor Rudolph.

"The Society has over 150 friars serving God among men in English, American and Pacific provinces," he said, "and we hope that the people of Daly City will take this opportunity to be led by the friars in prayer and meditation Monday through Thursday evenings at 8."

The Maundry Thursday service, April 8, will include a "festal" celebration of Holy Communion featuring Schubert's Mass in F performed by the St. Martin's Chancel Choir directed by Paul Rosendall, the church organist.

"On this birthday of the second great sacrament of the church, we cordially invite the public to join us," said Reverend Rudolph.

On Good Friday, April 10, there will be a three-hour service from noon to 3 p.m., featuring addresses by the Rev. Alex Muro, pastor of Westlake Community Baptist Church; the Rev. Donald Sheley, pastor of Calvary Cross Church, and by Reverend Rudolph.

Reverend Rudolph said that this service of prayer and praise will include the participation of other Daly City clergy as readers, and is open to the public.

"Christians call this day 'good' Friday," said Reverend Rudolph, "because in the darkness of death God showed His glory and His eternal "goodness" by raising Jesus to victory over sin and death for all men everywhere."

St. Martin's is located at 777 Southgate Avenue, Daly City.

WHS Frosh, Soph Down Serramonte

Westmoor's frosh-soph baseball team opened the league with a 12-1 thrashing of Serramonte.

Westmoor scored three runs in the top of the first on a single and two solen bases by Chuck Collondrez, after Rob Roy struck out. Collondrez scored on a wild pitch and Chris Welsh promptly singled to left, went to second on a wild pitch, stole third base and scored on Jerry Mitchell's single. After Mitchell stole second and John Hart fouled out to the third baseman, powerful Lou Medrano lofted a long triple to right-center field to drive in Mitchell and close out the first inning scoring.

Lance Judd opened the second inning by getting to first on an error; Chuck Collondrez walked pushing Judd to second. On the next pitch Judd went to third on a passed ball and scored on a sacrifice bunt by Rob Toy to make the score 4-0 at the end of 1½ innings.

After a scoreless third inning, the Rams exploded for five runs in the fourth on singles by Judd, Collondrez, Roy, and Welsh, walks to Mark Racette and John Hart, a double by Mitchell and four balks by the Serramonte pitchers.

Three more runs in the fifth on a single by Chris Welsh, a hit batsman, walks to Hart and Racette, another balk, and a doubte by pitcher Bob Payne, closed out the Ram scoring at 12.

After five shutout innings hurled by fire-balling Bob Payne, the Regents finally got on the board in the sixth on a towering triple from the bat of second-baseman Larry Ortiz and an r.b.i. single by centerfielder Kirk Dove. Ken Urutia of the Regents went two for three at the plate.

the likes of Pete Rozelle, but we find it hard to feel panic over what could be the outcome of the Spencer Haywood case. As the flacks have undoubtedly already let you know, if the decision of a federal district judge in L.A. is upheld, the NBA-NFL rule which prohibits its member teams from signing an athlete until after his class has graduated from college will not be legally enforceable in that it would be construed as in violation of the Sherman Anti-trust act. That ruling would destroy the entire concept of the NFL-NBA draft system, and set a war in motion between pro leagues which would surely ravage the colleges of their top athletes.

"IT WOULD DESTROY college football — all sports in colleges," says Rozelle. That's not quite accurate. It would deprive the colleges of their pro-oriented athletes. And wouldn't it be exhilerating to watch truly genuine, dedicated amateurs playing college sports again?

Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

How about starting off this good morning with some ideas for breakfast or brunch?

Sometimes it seems there's nothing new under the sun where that morning meal is concerned. Take heart, here is something new and it's as good served on a foggy or rainy day as in bright sunshine. A cheese souffle that is a delight. I recently served it for a brunch and it was highly praised by my gracious guests. When ten ladies can agree on a recipe's merit, it merits being offered to you good cooks.

EASY CHEESE SOUFFLE

10 or 11 slices white bread, remove crusts and butter on one side, cut in small squares
½ pound sharp cheddar cheese, grated
5 eggs, beaten
2½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt

Butter a 9x13-inch baking dish. Remove the crusts and butter one side of the 10 or 11 slices white bread. Cut in cubes. Spread the buttered squares in the pan, alternate cubes and the half pound grated cheese.

Beat the five eggs, combine with the two and one-half cups milk and teaspoon salt. Pour over bread and cheese. Cover with foil and allow to stand several hours, or overnight in refrigerator.

Bake uncovered in 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. Serves 10

The first time I made this dish I halved it in the following manner:

5 slices bread
¼ pound cheese, grated
2 eggs
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt

THESE RICH and gooey orange rolls with sugary orange topping make a nice accompaniment to the souffle.

DANISH ROLLS A LA ORANGE

1 can (11 oz.) refrigerated orange Danish rolls with icing
¼ cup Cointreau or dry white wine
¼ cup orange juice

TOPPING

2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
Heat oven to 400-degrees.

Line 8 muffin cups with foil or paper liners. In a small bowl, blend icing from rolls, one-fourth cup Cointreau and juice. Spoon two teaspoons of mixture in each lined muffin cup. Separate Danish rolls into 8 rolls; place one roll in each cup. Spoon remaining mixture over rolls. Bake in 400-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes until golden brown. Sprinkle warm rolls with topping. Serve warm in liners.

Topping: In small bowl combine the two tablespoons sugar with the teaspoon grated orange peel; mix well.

Tip: Reheat, loosely wrapped in foil at 350 degrees for 6 to 8 minutes until warm.

COFFEE CAKE WITH a rich topping of cinnamon, sugar and walnuts goes well at breakfast, brunch, or as a dessert. This particular coffee cake has been a favorite of mine for years, quick, easy and so good.

COFFEE CAKE

1 cup sugar
½ cup margarine or butter
2 eggs, (unbeaten)
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup milk
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder

Cream the one cup sugar with the half cup margarine. Add the two unbeaten eggs and cream again. Sift together the one and one-half cups flour and two teaspoons baking powder. Add the teaspoon vanilla to the half cup milk. Add the sifted dry ingredients and the milk and vanilla to the creamed mixture alternately, ending with the flour mixture.

Pour into greased 9x9-inch pan. Sprinkle with topping and bake in 350-degree oven for 45 minutes.

TOPPING

2 Tablespoons brown sugar
1 Tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup walnuts, chopped
1 Tablespoon butter

In a small bowl combine the two tablespoons brown sugar, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon cinnamon and one cup walnuts. Sprinkle over cake. Dab the tablespoon butter over top.

CORRECTION: In the swiss steak deluxe featured in last week's column the amount of mustard should read: 1 teaspoon dried mustard.

Tom Powell
Hour of the Pearl

"You have to feel sorry for people who aren't up at this time of the day."

One of us always says it. A councilman, a reporter and a deskman, trunkload of golf clubs, headed north — the Wednesday morning threesome. It's usually dark and moist as the San Bruno mountains are between us and the sun, and then we flow on just a little and can look down upon the bay, bathed in the cold morning light.

Commuters all around us clench their steering wheels and curse the pace. But it is our day off — and we intend to use it all.

I'm telling you all this because I'd like to talk about breakfast— the least storied meal, and yet often the most satisfying at all.

For us Americans, breakfast has become standard fare. Bacon and eggs, ham and eggs, hash browns, pancakes, maybe an omelet. Which is all right. It's not the food so much as when you eat it, and under what circumstances.

During a crisp mountain dawn last spring, we wound down the wet road into the lakeland — going fishing. It was cold and you could smell the pine and the water and the dew. Then, as we rounded the bend into the little town by the lake we could smell that someone had started a wood fire in the stove. Within moments, the aroma of frying bacon permeated the entire countryside and we were suddenly famished.

Once when I was a kid and we were living in the south, the family was preparing for a long journey. The neighbors, southern natives, insisted on serving us breakfast to get us off to a good start.

We were astounded to sit down, just after sunup, to a table of fried chicken, mashed potatoes, grits, gravy and milk, coffee and juices. I think we ate everything in sight.

Compote Special

4 Seedless oranges
2 Grapefruit
1 Lime
1 Cup sugar
½ Cup water
2 Tablespoons orange liqueur

Peel the rinds from the oranges and grapefruit, removing the white membrane. Cut the oranges and grapefruit into sections, over a bowl, to catch all the juice. Add the fruit to the bowl. With a sharp knife cut orange and grapefruit peel into very thin slivers, enough to make one tablespoon of each. Prepare one teaspoon of lime peel in the same way. In a saucepan mix the sugar with the water. Add the slivered peel, along with one tablespoon lime juice. Cook over medium heat without stirring for eight minutes, until it is a light syrup. Pour hot syrup over the fruit, stir gently, and chill several hours. Add liqueur (optional) just before serving.

Lemon Butter

½ Cup softened butter
½ Cup honey
2 Tablespoons lemon juice
1 Teaspoon grated lemon peel

In a small mixer bowl, cream butter until very fluffy. Gradually add honey in a thin steady stream while beating at high speed; beat in lemon juice. Sprinkle lemon peel over butter, then stir in by hand so it will be evenly blended.

Orange Waffles With Lemon Butter

4 Eggs
2 Cups orange juice
2 Tablespoons lemon juice
2 Teaspoons grated orange peel
2 Cups sifted all-purpose flour
4 Tablespoons cornmeal
1 Teaspoon soda
1 Teaspoon baking powder
1 Teaspoon salt
2 Tablespoons melted butter

Beat eggs well. Add juices and grated peel. Sift together flour, cornmeal, soda, baking powder and salt. Add to mixture. Beat a few minutes until smooth, then add melted butter. Bake in heated waffle iron. Serve with lemon butter.

Victim Can't Be in Court

The Daly City steel company foreman who was allegedly beaten by two San Francisco policemen will be unable to appear in court for at least a month his attorney said on Friday.

Mrs. Dorsey Redland, attorney for Lawrence Candler, 37, told San Francisco Municipal Judge Joseph G. Kennedy that the alleged attack on her client by officers William Gay and Cornelius J. Lucey last Saturday will require a month for recovery.

Judge Kennedy agreed with Attorney Redland and set the arraignment date for April 23.

Candler was stopped by the two plainclothes officers on Lincoln Way in San Francisco after his car reportedly scraped against their unmarked pickup truck when he cut in front of them.

The officers also charged Candler shouted obscene language at them after he was stopped.

Candler and a witness, Dr. Terence W. McGrath of St. Mary's Hospital, deny the charges.

Dr. McGrath, a white radiologist at the hospital, said the officers began hitting Candler without provocation. He also said no contact was made between the two vehicles.

Scotty Campbell's One Of Peninsula Favorites

Out of towners respond warmly to Scotty Campbell's charm and cuisine, and readily understand why Peninsulans regard this as one of their favorite restaurants. Dinner may be complete (oven hot garlic bread, crisp tossed salad with choice of dressing, stuffed baked or baked with sour cream and chives, coffee or tea), or a la carte. Entrees could be one of the chef's great successes, such as Beef Brochette, Flambe. Your Bright Lighter joins co-owner-hostess Mary Lou Francis in recommending an extra dessert treat — Maerd Eip (their own special cheese pie) . . . For a scenic drive along Highway One and a pleasant dining experience, Bright Lights suggests a visit to The Moonraker restaurant in Pacifica. Every table or banquette in the tiered dining room offers a spectacular view of the ever-changing surf at Rockaway Beach. Owner Nick Gust (he's also the busy mayor of Pacifica), also owns and operates the Papagayo Room located just below, where a fantastic offer is now available by clipping the coupon appearing on Bright Lights and presenting it to your waitress. You will receive a choice of a Steak Picado or a large Combination Plate. The least expensive "2 for the price of 1" dinner is FREE. Valid Sundays through Fridays (Holidays excluded). Park Avenue Trip–$12,500

They say that Dame Fortune takes a long time breaking out with a smile for her many Keno players. But not so in the case of George Dunn, who toils in the back shop of the San Mateo Times. Hard working George and a group of his friends spent last weekend on a Park Avenue Tour "Reno Fun Package Tour" to the swank, new Ponderosa Hotel in Reno. His first venture in the game of Keno netted him a solid eight spot and a $12,500 take-home prize. As if that wasn't enough: George held another ticket worth a mere $200. Right now George is far from "Dunn." . . . Susan Nemiroff, lovely vocalist with the Jimmy Vann Band which produces the sterling sounds for the patrons in Hugo's Bistro at Hyatt House Burlingame, Tuesday through Saturday, is no stranger to show business. She previously performed with the Doodletown Pipers, and has appeared on numerous television shows, including those of Perry Como, Alan King, Milton Berle, Roy Clark and Roger Miller . . . Lou Ercoli, the junior guiding force at South City's Leaning Tower, has taken up the "relaxing" game of golf. He recently played at Cypress Hills, but quit on the 16th hole (he didn't say whether it was in disgust or for an early start on the 19th).

Carroll Wallace Talented

Carroll Wallace, once billed as the "Most beautiful boy in the world," is one of the talented female impersonators now appearing at Finocchio's. Carroll, who handles the emcee chores in this world-famous show, has toured the Far East several times with his own troupe, and has appeared with that most glamorous of show business activities, the Earl Carroll Revues . . . If you want a great luncheon value, order the French Dip Beef Sandwich at Ansara's restaurant and cocktail lounge in Redwood City. This popular $1.65 special gives you heaping slices of tender beef with crisp French Fries and your own au jus cup for contented dunking. You will also appreciate any one of the more than half dozen full course $2.95 dinners that feature soup or salad, exceptional entrees such as U.S.D.A. Choice broiled Top Sirloin Steak, berry cobbler and gourmet coffee. Take Whipple Turn-Off to Dennis Nelson Center building . . . One of the most popular gourmet treats at Phil Lehr's Steakery in downtown San Francisco carries the intriguing name, "Half & Half." It's savory steak broiled to your exact taste, plus tender lobster tail — two superb entrees on one dinner.

Medallions On Display

Lew Lehr is receiving a flock of compliments on the handsome, new "Man in Space" medallions on display at his popular Steak House in San Francisco's Marina District. Made by the famous Danbury Mint in Connecticut, the sterling silver medallions trace America's conquest of space from Alan Shepherd's first ride aboard a Mercury rocket, through the Apollo XI moon landing . . . Already Enrico Romano, owner and operator of Romano's Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, is looking forward to this year's hunting season. Enrico is a fervent sportsman, and as if that wasn't enough, he is also an enthusiastic (to say the least) racing car fan. In addition to cars, he often drives himself through long, difficult days that demand much of his time in the kitchen as he prepares his superb Italian sauces and small-medium-large pizzas.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Young Set Also "Digs" The Exotic Castaway

Jim Pias, general manager of The Castaway, at Coyote Point, has decided to make his exotic restaurant the spring prom headquarters for graduating high school seniors and other young people attending various social functions. Pias and his crew especially delight in showing them what an evening of fine food and service in a quality restaurant should be. The kids, as they say, must "dig it," as you will see them scattered throughout the crowds every weekend at The Castaway . . . Steak and Lobster Combination has recently been added to the extensive dinner menu at the Red Cottage restaurant, Menlo Park. Served with salad, vegetable and baked potato, dinner also includes a glass of wine. Bill Balle, the chef here, must be "doing something right," as he's worked for owners Ken Parsett and Dorothy Pace for 18 years . . . Mondays, when Atherton's Lord Fletcher Inn is ordinarily not open, is a day usually reserved for private parties and banquets in the restaurant. On a recent Monday, general manager Andy Ardito and his staff hosted a group (185 strong) of members from the Menlo Park Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Art Davis Prize-Winning Chef

The Exposition Fish Grotto's executive chef, Art Davis, is the recipient of many prizes for his crab specialties. Last year, he swept the awards in the Crab Cooking Championships, and now proudly displays three trophies for his culinary efforts . . . Still drawing weekend plaudits at Russo's in San Bruno is the Cisco and Boston Mason Show. Vince Russo will soon be calling his establishment The Distillery. Business continues to bustle through both lunch and dinner during the remodeling project . . . Ling Wong Chinese Food, one of several restaurants in Hillsdale's Farmers Market, serves a wide variety of modestly priced Chinese dishes. Complete dinners and a la carte dishes are available, as well as food to go. A Shopper's Special (any three items) is served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. which is a "bestseller" . . . Buffy's, on Laurie Meadows Drive, is running a money-saving coupon on Bright Lights page for an old-fashioned New England Clam Dinner (complete with salad, a dozen steamed clams, corrn-on-the-cob and sourdough bread). Buy one dinner at the regular price, present the coupon for one-half off on the price of the second dinner. Or, if you'd rather, order a dozen steamed clams and a salad for only $2.29.

Gary Lee Back Again

Veteran performer Gary Lee, who enjoys a large following of fans, is back at Stickney's Stage Coach Room, in San Mateo, where he set records for his long stay as pianobar entertainer in recent months. Gary is rarely stumped on song requests. So pay him a visit after one of those delightful, candlelight dinners in Stickney's main dining room. He entertains Fridays and Saturdays from 5 p.m. Welcome back, Gary! Vince's Italian and Sea Food restaurant, a long-time favorite of the particular diner, is drawing big luncheon crowds of business people from all around the Peninsula. Luncheon specials are served Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Dinners also attract those in search of good food served quietly in a pleasant atmosphere at reasonable prices. The selective menu includes a wide variety of fish, special casserole dishes, pastes, sandwiches, soups, salads and steaks. Sunday Special: Roast Chicken and Polenta. The wine list indicates that the selections were carefully chosen . . . The Hillsdale Inn is the site chosen by "Welcome Wagon" for a "brides-to-be" show on Wednesday, March 31. Displays and products of interest will be viewed by the gals, and several local stores will have personnel on hand to assist them in planning their weddings.

Voting Machine Dilemma Hits Officials in San Mateo County

By VIRGIL WILSON

A million dollars or so of taxpayers' money — and San Mateo County's record of superiority in the matter of getting the votes counted on election night — are at stake as county officials wrestle with a problem involving voting machines.

The problem is one of capacity; it took some scrambling to make the county's voting machines do in the 1970 elections. And election officials fear that one of these years, perhaps as early as 1974, the devices will not have the capacity to do the job unless certain steps are taken in the meantime.

State legislation might help, and work is progressing on that. But, even with the help of new legislation, it might be necessary to undertake an extensive machine modification program to enlarge their capacity, a costly project.

All else failing, other voting systems, such as paper ballots or punch cards, might have to be used in conjunction with the existing voting machines. Election authorities see many disadvantages to that, however, including the loss of the "fast count" on election night which has brought the county nation-wide fame over the years.

The problem has been laid out for County Manager M. D. Tarshes in a 15-page report prepared by the election-registration staff in the office of County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church. Tarshes said the matter is under study by his staff and it may be some time before any recommendations are ready for the County Board of Supervisors. He pointed out that any recommendations for major expenditures would apply to the 1972-73 fiscal year — still a year away.

San Mateo County made its first purchase of Shoup voting machines in 1961 at the going rate at that time of $1,742 each. In the years that followed a total of 1,210 of that model, which has seven columns for the listing of candidates and issues, were acquired, representing an investment of more than $2 million.

Also acquired have been 128 machines of an eight-column model, at a cost of some $250,000. The unit price on the last purchase was $1,975.

In the early years the machines were not actually purchased, but were leased from Shoup with the rentals going toward amortization of the purchase price. Later, a non-profit corporation was formed to sell bonds for construction of an election-registration headquarters west of Belmont. The corporation put up a $547,355 building and bought up Shoup's equity in the machines for another $1.3 million. The county is presently renting both the building and the machines from the corporation under a lease-purchase arrangement.

The first serious problem with the seven-column machines occurred in the 1970 June primary, for which there was the largest ballot in the history of the county. It was too big for the devices, in fact.

Part of the problem involved the fact that when the machines were acquired there were three political parties in California, now there are four: Peace and Freedom and American Independent Party in addition to Republican and Democratic.

Election officials got around the dilemma by staggering the minor parties, that is, listing Peace and Freedom candidates on one machine in each precinct and AIP candidates on another. Because of that procedure, according to the staff report, it was necessary to install 30 more machines throughout the county than would have been necessary otherwise. The report shows that there was, in addition, the cost of installing special procedures for voters and of training election workers.

The situation was similar in the November general election.

The report states that there is a capacity problem with the eight-column machines too, but that it is a relatively minor one compared with the older machines.

Flexibility in use of the ballot positions on the machines is limited by state laws, the report points out.

Based on experience, according to the report, it is not expected that the ballots in 1972 will reach machine capacity. They might, however, the document states if (1) a fifth political party were to come into existence, (2) any of the minority parties developed a full slate of candidates, or (3) if school unification elections scheduled for the June primary present a long slate of candidates.

"We are very concerned, however," the report goes on, "that in the gubernatorial election of 1974 we may have a ballot beyond machine capacity."

The success or failure of several legislative proposals pending in Sacramento would have a bearing. The report suggests new laws that would ease the capacity problem by requiring parties having less than one per cent of the state's total registration to select their candidates in party conevntion rather than by the primary election ballot method, and eliminate the names of uncontested judicial and county officers from the ballot. Bills providing for these things are reportedly progressing through legislative channels in Sacramento.

In addition, a piece of legislation proposed by the County Board of Supervisors is under preparation. It would permit increasing the maximum voter size of precincts from 600 to 1,000 which, if it were done, would save the county an estimated $80,000 per election. A similar bill, also sponsored by the county, failed in the 1970 legislature.

The seven-column machines could be modified by the Shoup Company to provide two more columns and give the needed flexibility. Shoup has offered to do the work in six months' time for $730 a machine, a total of $883,300, according to the report.

Trading in the old machines on new models has not been fully explored because of an understanding that they would have little trade-in value and such a transaction would involve extensive freight costs.

The last alternative solution suggested in the report would make use of supplementary voting methods — punch cards and paper ballots — to be used in conjunction with the unmodified voting machines. It is estimated, however, that the punch card method would add $71,985 to the cost of a major county-wide election and paper ballots would cost an additional $54,325.

The use of two voting methods simultaneously would impair the efficiency of the operation, however, the report states, in addition to being "costly and clumsy to administer." In addition, it would receive poor acceptance by the public and news media, create problems in obtaining and keeping precinct officials, and would destroy the "fast count," which is based on a quick reading and reporting of the cumulative results on the voting machines.

The report recommends that "serious consideration" be given to the machine modification program and suggests that the possibility be explored of re financing the machines to include the cost of the work.

New Members on Drug Abuse Committee in S.S.F.

A representation from the entire South San Francisco community came forth at the meeting of The Citizen's Advisory Committee on Drug Use and Abuse recently.

The purpose of the group is "to involve the entire community in the development of a cooperative multi-agency appoach to the problems of youth in a drug-oriented society."

New members include Bob Aronson, South San Francisco Recreation and Parks Department; Rev. Robert C. Clazie, SSF Ministerial Association; Bill Finlayson, Mary's Help Hospital; Norman Trout, South San Francisco Boys' Club; Terri Miri, and three junior high school students, Dan Freeland, Alta Loma; Donna Mathewson, Westborough; and Cath Helton, Parkway.

Dr. Clifton Boyack, assistant superintendent of South San Francisco Unified School District, reviewed CAC goals, achieved in the past year, and explained drug education and counseling. Parent classes are also offered in the district, according to Carol Germenis, CAC publicity chairman.

A two-day seminar was held last fall and coffee hours involving the school district and Damien House were on the agenda. Three committees were formed to study a teen advisory council, a day school program for students expelled from the district and the possibility of opening the junior high schools for after-school activities.

Maury Villa, a resident of Damien House, reported the South San Francisco Damien House is in the final stages of renovation and will open shortly. The next meeting of the Citizen's Advisory Committee will be April 4 at 10 a.m. in the district board room. Interested citizens are urged to participate.

S.F. Airlines' Aide Gloomy Over Defeat

By GEORGE GOLDING

The Senate action killing America's supersonic transport plane program Wednesday is "an American tragedy which will be looked back upon, in the year 2000, as one of the major turning points leading to Soviet domination of the globe."

So said one San Fraancisco-based airline spokesman today, asking that his name not be used because of the airlines' sensitive position regarding federal operational and financial control.

"This thing will be sold, if it is built," he said, "even at $45 million a copy.

"The Russian's TU-144 will be sold, and the British and French have no choice now but to make the Concorde operational."

Another airline spokesman suggested the denial of money to continue building two prototype SST's will not leave the government without responsibility for providing cash.

"We regret that the Congress has voted against the U.S. SST program," said a Pan Am executive.

"We expect, however, that we will immediately recover our delivery deposits of $3 million. We also anticipate that Congress will appropriate funds to reimburse Pan Am for the $15 million in development funds which Pan Am has advanced to the program."

The unnamed airlines speaker went further. He said America's refusal to compete in the supersonic transport is a triumph of hysteria over reason.

It will remove America's greatest source of income from overseas nations, and reduce the country's status to that of a second-class power, he said.

He said the airlines will not buy supersonic aircraft until and unless they meet all the operational specifications met by existing planes, including no further noise, and no increase in air pollution.

Trustee Head Gives Support to Chancellor

Robert Tarver, the president of the San Mateo Junior College District's Board of Trustees, said today that he has "the fullest confidence" in the leadership of the district's chancellor, Clifford Erickson.

Tarver, who talked with The Times after he learned that Erickson would be making public a vote of confidence in his leadership taken at the College of San Mateo, said that, "I think this (the vote of no confidence) is a reflection of the frustration and concern that crept over the whole faculty during the talk about fallback plans during the recent tax election."

He said that, "I respect the people who are involved in this vote sampling. There is a big, big gap between the faculty and the administration.

"We've heard a lot of rumors about rumblings that were taking place and I wasn't surprised when that vote came in. And, I'm not really sure what it means. It just adds to the confusion."

Asked if he had any second thoughts about Erickson's qualifications in the light of the depth of feeling displayed by the faculty at CSM, Tarver said that, "We won't give any more consideration to him (Erickson) than we give as a constant evaluation to all the administrators and the faculty.

Private Industry Seen Only Hope for Jobless Aides

By LIN DAY

There's no immediate hope for the Peninsula's technologically unemployed engineers and scientists, unless private industry steps in, was the concensus of the first of three meetings on the subject held by the College of San Mateo Community Services program at San Mateo City Hall.

A panel of speakers agreed that any government action on any level would take months to become effective. Meanwhile, panelists brought out, tax bills would be due in weeks.

A majority of the six-member panel moderated by Milton Shields were members of "Experience Unlimited," an organization of engineers and scientists formed by themselves after they received their pink slips.

They were a group, they admitted, that ranged from personnel managers to nuclear scientists, many from the aerospace industries.

One panelist, Joseph J. Hoffmeier, of Experience Unlimited, said that 7,000 more will be out of work in Seattle next week because Congress failed to support the Supersonic Transport program, and 10,000 more in service industries also will be out of a job.

The panel failed to find any immediate solutions for the men who a year ago held high positions in science and industry, but it did come up with a number of suggestions that might help.

1. Action on an emergency basis by the State Legislature to create a moratorium on income and property taxes of six months, to allow scientists and engineers technologically unemployed to escape having to call on dwindling credit resources to pay their taxes.

2. Action by the State to offer $2.5 million tax free to the first company that comes up with a workable, inexpensive system for bar pilots, to end such things as the ship collision that recently filled the Bay and coastlands with oil slicks.

(This could put the expert radar and other engineers to work.)

3. Lobbying, ever picketing to make the public and employers aware of the technological problem. (There was considerable disagreement among the professional men on this.)

4. A loan program to support small industries utilizing the highly sophisticated skills of the engineers and scientists to develop new products and create industrial breakthroughs, both in ecology and in other fields.

The initial suggestion for this came from an Experience Unlimited member in the audience, Jeanette Bass, former mechanical designer at Western Gear, who gave as an example the Terracology Inc. enterprise in San Jose, which, she said, was already showing success in developing new products.

5. Including a "manpower factor" in allocation of government contracts. Panelist Assemblyman Dixon Arnett said he is already working on this, and that he hopes to put Assistant Secretary of Labor for Manpower Arthur Fletcher together with "our people in Human Resources and Development" to put it into action.

6. Utilizing some of the $4 billion annually sent out of the country by the Federal government to cushion technological changes, and to protect the skilled and ultra-skilled labor pool.

7. Encouraging private industry to employ the highly talented labor force being displaced.

Orton, who noted that many in the audience were from our own group, also unemployed, said that "we are trying to convince employers that aerospace is not a social disease.

"I am not unemployed because I was a bad boy. We developed the X-15, the LEM, Apollo. I think we are an elite type of people.

"Why is the stigma of aerospace such that a man capable of putting a man on the moon is not qualified to work in a luggage shop?"

Panelist Victor Wood said that living in San Mateo "costs too much, especially if we don't have the money to pay for it." He said there are 8,000 professional people unemployed, and that getting jobs in San Mateo County takes many phone calls to get one job lead.

Several of the panelists and audience members discussed the needs for new national goals.

"I wonder if we are moving into social areas?" he commented. "Perhaps we are seeing the emergence of the social scientist, just as fifteen years ago we saw the emergence of the physical scientist."

In introducing the subject, Shields stated that as of March 1, national employment had reached 5.5 and state unemployment 7.2 per cent, and that in some areas, it ranged as high as 8.9 per cent unemployed.

Previous slumps had rarely affected engineers and scientists, he said, but now they constituted 25 percent of layoffs. The layoffs are disrupting the economy, he said, and noted that tax revenues have dropped.

Shields called the Nixon statements of moving to a peacetime economy a "snare and a delusion." Instead, he said, the nation is embarking on a reform of a permanent war economy.

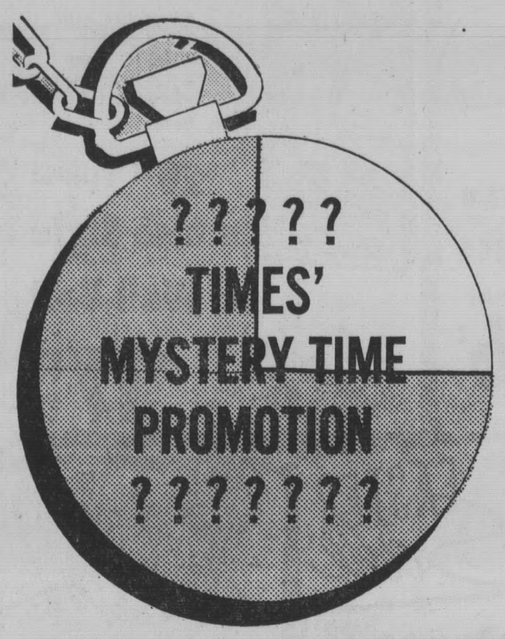
FREE WANT ADS!

SPECIAL OFFER DURING INTERNATIONAL WANT AD WEEK MONDAY, APRIL 5 THROUGH SATURDAY, APRIL 10



During selected 15-minute "mystery time" intervals The Times will be offering free want ads to all private-party, non-commercial want ad users.

To celebrate International Want Ad Week and the installation of our new CENTREX telephone system, The Times is offering free want ads to voluntary (non-commercial) advertisers.

This is how it works:

1. A mystery time period of 15 minutes each morning and afternoon during Want Ad Week will be set aside.

2. Everyone calling or stopping at The Times during the mystery time will be given free want ads.

3. To be eligible, you must call The Times' new classified number, 348-4444, or the Daly City office, 992-2262, or Redwood City office, 369-1791.

4. Mystery times will not be announced in advance and persons calling during the mystery time will not be told until their ad is written and scheduled that they will not be charged for the ad.

5. But regardless of the size of the ad or the number of times it is to run, there will be no charge for the ad.

6. The mystery time will be changed daily and all mystery times and winners of free ads will be announced the following day.

You must call the above number to qualify for free want ads unless you are calling our Daly City office, 992-2262 or Redwood City office, 369-1791.

INTERNATIONAL WANT AD WEEK
APRIL 4-11, 1971

Howard Looney Is Transit Panel Chief

Howard A. Looney has been named chairman of the Citizens Committee of the San Francisco Airport Access Project (SFAAP).

Looney, a former member of the San Mateo Rapid Transit Study Committee and the now-defunct West Bay Rapid Transit Authority, was selected by San Mateo County Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald for the post.

Supervisor Fitzgerald said Looney's strong interest and experience in transit planning in the county would be invaluable.

"I believe any plan for the extension of Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) routes should contemplate further extensions through the whole county," Looney said. "For this reason, it is particularly important that a good cross-section of the public is well-informed and represented on this project."

The Citizens Committee was set up by the SFAAP Board of Control to keep the public informed on the progress of the project and to act as a sort of "go between" for the Board and public.

With five members each appointed from San Mateo and San Francisco, plus 24 members from the North County's eight cities, and 12 members appointed by the supervisors, it is the largest group ever to be formed to study transit in the county.

Bike Thefts Increasing

The thefts of bicycles in the North County has reached an alarming rate.

As many as 15 new ten-speed cycles have been pedalled off in a single day in Daly City alone.

Police Captain Dave Hansen, in issuing a warning to the public this week, said "thefts of bicycles may seem insignificant at first glance. But when you consider these bikes are valued at more than $100 it becomes a very sigificant problem."

Three Booked for Narcotics

Two San Mateo men and a 15 year old girl were arrested Sunday in the parking lot of the Cow Palace in Daly City on a variety of narcotics charges.

Officers Steve Lowe and James Mendiara were on patrol in the Carter Street area about 7 p.m. when they saw a lone car parked in the rear lot.

Both Baker and Valdes were booked into city jail for possession of narcotics, possession of narcotic paraphernalia and contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Here are our new calling cards . . .

Beginning Monday, April 5, The Times will have a new CENTREX telephone system to provide even better service to our customers. With CENTREX outside callers will be able to dial directly to departments and personnel without going through a switchboard . . . this means The Times will be able to respond to our customers more quickly, accurately, and economically. If there should be some difficulties during the changeover period and initial stages of CENTREX, we ask your indulgence — with time our communications system will be improved. In the meantime, you can help us by calling the numbers above beginning Monday, April 5.

(Our Daly City office continues to be 992-2262 and Redwood City office continues to be 369-1791.)

Another Sold Out Sign?

"Sorry, we're sold out," was the sad news heard by many a disappointed person at the 1970 Miss Pacifica Pageant, and this year's ticket chairman, Jess Martinez, anticipates saying it again at the 1971 Miss Pacifica Pageant to be held in the Terra Nova High School gymnasium April 24, at 8 p.m.

'Anyone who has ever attended a Miss Pacifica Pageant will vouch for the top notch professional production," Martinez stated, indicating that the gym will only hold 1,500 persons. Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $2.50 for students through high school. They are now on sale from numerous firms from any of the ten semi-finalists who are competing, not only for the crown of Miss Pacifica but also for a $50 savings bond awarded to the contestant who sells the most tickets

The 1971 Miss Pacifica Pageant will mark the 15th Anniversary of the show which was first held to raise funds for the city's incorporation.

For the first time in the 15-year history of the Miss Pacifica Pageant, a formal ball will be held in honor of the retiring Miss Pacifica, Donna Lee Van Sickle.

This will be the first event of coming Pageant week and will be held April 17 in the Terrace Room of the Hilton Inn, San Francisco International Airport.

The Pageant itself, noted throughout California as the outstanding preliminary pageant to Miss California and Miss America in the State of California, will be held the following Saturday — April 24 — in the Terra Nova High School Gymnasium.

Music for the ball will be provided by the Jack Fisher Orchestra, directed by Bernie Kahn.

Co-sponsor of the First Annual event, along with the Miss Pacifica Pageant, will be the Pacifica Federated Women's Club.

The organization chairman is Mrs. Lee Szeles who is in charge of hostessing and decorations. All 1971 Miss Pacifica Pageant Patrons and Sponsors have received complimentary tickets to the ball, however there are a few tickets left for general admission ticket holders of the Pageant.

Price for individual ball bids is $7.50 a couple, and may be obtained through the Chamber of Commerce or the Pacifica Federated Women's Club.

A special "Sponsor's Champagne Cocktail Party" will preceed the ball in honor of the 11 business establishments and merchants' associations which are financial supports of the event.

The Miss Pacifica Pageant is sponsored by the Scenic Pacifica Chamber of Commerce and is franchised direct from the Miss California Pageant for participation in Santa Cruz.
